THE WORLD'S BEST TASTING VODKA PRESENTS...

In 1998, the Beverage Testing Institute of Chicago conducted a blind taste test of more than 80 vodkas. They awarded points based on smoothness, nose, and most importantly, taste. Of all the vodkas, Grey Goose® Vodka emerged victorious, receiving 96 points out of a possible 100.

Now Grey Goose®, the world's best tasting vodka, presents Grey Goose® Vodka L'Orange. Like each careful brush stroke in Paul Cézanne's painting "Fruit and Jug on a Table." Each bottle of Grey Goose® L'Orange is created with precision. Infused with the sweetness of fresh oranges, L'Orange captures the essence of orange and artistically blends it with the world's finest vodka.

AUGUST SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Entrance to Northwest Harbor

The Ghost Town

Deep In The Woods Of East Hampton Are The Remains Of A Town Time Forgot

By Dan Rattiner

If you want to get a little exercise this summer, go out and play a round of golf at one of the Hamptons' dozen golf courses. Try a public course. For about $25, you'll be hitting 3 woods on the fairway, blasting out of sand traps with a wedge and holing out with a putter. Another alternative is to pony up $250,000 for the initiation fee to one of the new private clubs. To play at one of the older private clubs favored by the social set, marry a debutante.

In any case you will spend at least half a day and walk about two and a half miles in a highly structured social environment.

Of course if you would prefer to get your exercise in a less structured situation, you can spend a half a day and walk the same two and a half miles through the abandoned ghost town that lies deep in the woods due northwest of Main Street and Newtown Lane in downtown East Hampton. You will learn the amazing story of what happened to the village of Northwest which for nearly 100 years was the main boat harbor on the South Fork, and you wouldn't have to smack any little white ball as you go.

Getting to the start of this old ghost town walk is easy. From the traffic light in the center of downtown East Hampton, drive east on route 27 about 150 feet, bear to the left of the great old windmill onto North Main Street, go under the railroad bridge and as you pass DellaFemina's restaurant on the left, make the left onto Cedar Street. Cedar Street will go up through some potato farmland, and just before you reach Stephen Hands Path, enters a deep woods. The name of the road changes at this point to Old Northwest Road and now the deep woods continues along for about two miles. Then, on your right, you will see the foundations of an old 150 year old abandoned school house. You'll see a concrete monument by the roadside announcing this fact.

There were two schoolhouses. This was the second. It was built in 1827 for $250 to replace an older schoolhouse built in 1785 near Cedar Point that the town had outgrown. The school had its own library and librarian and had as many as forty pupils each year. But by 1880 the population of Northwest had dwindled down and finally the school was closed in 1885, a year that marks the end of the existence of Northwest.

Begin your walk at the schoolhouse monument, taking the well marked trail that heads off in a northwesterly direction. A small fresh water stream flows into a pond on your left. This was the fresh water that attracted the early settlers to this area.

Between here and Accabonac Harbor, the land was cleared into farmland that was then bordered by cedar trees. You'll see lines of them as you walk, defining long ago property boundaries of some of the residents.

Head up this path toward the bay. A few hundred yards up, the trail forks, and if you take the right fork, you'll go down a short way to the banks of Skoy's Pond, one of the most beautiful and completely untouched ponds in the area. You'll see water lilies, ducks and geese, and you'll see bream, a fish which come all the way up the stream to spawn in Skoy's Pond.

The left fork of the trail continues on down toward the bay. You'll pass a stand of locust trees planted by the settlers because the wood from the locust tree makes the best fences and the cattle had to be kept in. In the summer the livestock would be pastured here after enjoying a cool drink from Skoy's Pond. In the winter the pond froze over and the settlers would cut the pond ice into chunks, drag it off and store it in icehouses, and sometimes there would be ice in Northwest as late as June.

Walking another quarter of a mile, you'll find yourself on the front lawn of what once was the home of Josiah Kirk. Kirk was a wealthy Irishman who came to Northwest in 1860 and bought almost 400 acres, including nearly 1,000 feet on the bay.

Northwest by that time had begun a decline. It had been founded as a port town in the 1650's and was the only port of entry in these parts for almost hundred years. But then, as freight-hauling commercial ships got longer and wider, the wharf at Sag Harbor was built. Northwest Harbor, never a deep harbor, was too shallow for big craft, and soon they began going to Sag Harbor. By 1760, just about all freight commerce in Northwest Harbor came to an end.

Farming and fishing did continue in Northwest however. The first school was built in the 1780's the second in 1827, and then Josiah Kirk bought about a quarter of the land in the community for his farm and everything went sour.

South O' the Highway (and North, too)

In spite of threatening weather and occasional sprinkles, this year's "All For The Sea Concert" at Southampton College, which featured Jimmy Buffett was a complete sellout. Buffett performed some of his most popular hits including "Changes in Lattitudes," "Margaritaville and Brown Eyed Girl," also something which seems to be entitled, "Why Don't We Get Lunch In School." The concert raised over $12 million dollars for Marine Science scholarships and broke all financial records for any of the previous nine All For The Sea Concerts. Jimmy lives in North Haven, right on the water, of course. Buffett was introduced by College Chancellor Robert F.X. Sillerman who co-chaired the benefit with his wife Laura Baudo-Sillerman. In May the Sillerman's announced they were donating $15 million for scholarships and a library renovation at the college. Buffett said he was donating his concert fee back to the school. Each to his own.

A book party for Priscilla Rattazzi's new book, Georgica Pond will take place this Friday at the home of Chris Whittle in Georgica. The party is being hosted by Nicholas Calloway and Patrick McCarthy along with Mr. Whittle, and expected to attend are Nina Griscom, Kelly Klein, Donald and Mary Petrie and Paul Wilmot. Rattazzi and Whittle who are married, have raised three children in Manhattan and East Hampton, where they've spent the last ten years documenting the life on Georgica Pond in pictures.

Bill Gates and his wife Melinda are paying $19.8 million for an 8500 square foot floor at the Trump World Tower overlooking the U.N. Does this make the Microsoft Chairman New York State's richest man? And is a house in the Hamptons in the near future?

Without a doubt, the most imaginative invitation sent out this summer in the Hamptons was mailed out by Basia and Ken Nahoum of Water Mill who are holding a fund-raiser for ovarian cancer research on August 5. The invitation came as a group of oversized and colorful knives, forks and spoons made out of artboard wrapped up in a party napkin. For directions to their home—see the corkscrew. Guests expected to attend include Cindi Lauper, Bebe Neuwirth, Kim Cattrall and Donna Karan.

We have a report that basketball star Dennis Rodman is coming to the Hamptons at the end of August to host a three-on-three basketball tournament for charity. We have another report, maybe related, maybe not, that former Golden State Warrior basketball star Chris Mullin is hosting three-on-three basketball tournament at the Paul Annacone Tennis Classic at the East Hampton Indoor Tennis Club on August 20 and 21. The charity is the East Hampton ReCenter and the goal is to put an outdoor basketball court there. The tournament will run in conjunction with the Paul Annacone Tennis Classic 2000.

GIVE YOUR CHILD A HEALTHY SMILE

Many parents don't realize how early dental problems can occur, or just how important those "baby teeth" are!

Prolonged and frequent bottle or breast feeding can cause baby bottle tooth decay. Diets high in sugar from fruit roll-ups, sticky candies, juice and soda can also cause lots of cavities. Thumb and pacifier habits can cause malformations of the palate.

Children are not done losing their baby teeth until they are 12-13 years old! These teeth hold the spaces for permanent teeth, shape your child's face, and help with speech, eating and chewing.

Dr. Nancy Cosenza specializes in dentistry for children from infancy to their teenage years. At Hampton Pediatric Dental Associates, we know that not only children, but their teeth, are entirely different from adults. In fact, pediatric dentists require 2 years' additional training and education beyond dental school!

(There are only 5,000 pediatric dentists in the U.S., and we're the only pediatric dental practice in the Hamptons!)

Dr. Janet Stoess-Allen, our orthodontist, believes in early orthodontic intervention for those children who will clearly benefit from it. Early treatment presents the opportunity to influence jaw growth in a positive manner, lower risk of trauma to protruded upper incisors, correct harmful oral habits, and improve esthetics and self-esteem!

Our office is colorfully painted and cheerfully designed - a definite "kid-friendly" environment. Our staff is genuinely warm and cheerful too!

Call us at (631) 287-8687 if you have any questions or would like to arrange an appointment.

Remember that good dental habits and experiences started in childhood will last a lifetime! We know how to make kids leave the dentist's chair smiling — and their parents, too!

The Premier Family Event of Summer 2000!!

The Long Island Rail Road is making major track improvements. Most branches will be affected.

Through Sunday, August 13

The extensive track rehabilitation program begun in 1997 continues on the Main Line west of Jamaica Station. Service is being affected as follows:

■ Hunterspoint Ave. Service

- ◆ Most Hunterspoint Ave. trains are being diverted to/from Long Island City.
- ◆ At Long Island City, you may transfer to/from the 7 subway at the Vernon-Jackson Station, two blocks north.
- ◆ You may also transfer to the New York Waterway ferry service at Long Island City.

■ Main Line Service

- ◆ Six AM and three PM trains are being cancelled or combined on the Babylon, Far Rockaway, Hempstead, and Long Beach branches.
- ◆ Other trains are adding stops.
- ◆ Service remains the same to Kew Gardens, Forest Hills, and Woodside. However, departure times may change slightly. There is also one less AM peak train stopping at Woodside.

- ◆ During the week of August 7-11, there will be temporary platforms at Kew Gardens, Forest Hills, and Woodside.

- ◆ If you work in lower Manhattan, you can travel to the Flatbush Ave. Terminal and transfer there for Manhattan-bound subways.

■ Information Services

- ◆ Timetables dated July 15 include all Main Line changes.
- ◆ We urge all customers to pick up special timetables, brochures, or flyers outlining travel alternatives. Also, listen for Public Address announcements for more up-to-date information.

For more information, call the LIRR at 718-217-LIRR (NYC), 516-822-LIRR (Nassau), or 631-231-LIRR (Suffolk). For NYC Transit, call 718-330-1234. And for New York Waterway, call 1-800-53-FERRY.

The Little Bakeshop That Could.

Kathleen gets back to business on August 4th.

Kathleen with her dad, Richard "Tate" King, shortly after she opened her original store in 1980.

The saga is over and the baking has begun! Welcome to Tate's, the newest creation of Kathleen King. The new store, which is named after her dad, embodies the ingredients that are common to both her father and her original shop: quality, integrity, hard work, and the achievement of the American dream. Not to mention all the honest-to-goodness, old-fashioned cakes, cookies, muffins and pies you could ever imagine.

Of course, not a brownie could be baked or a single sweet savored if it weren't for the overwhelming support and encouragement that Kathleen received from a community that she holds so dear.

So it is with immeasurable appreciation and unrivaled enthusiasm that she takes her rightful place at the site of her original store on North Sea Road and invites everyone to an Open House on Friday, August 4 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

There will be plenty of complimentary, freshly-baked goodies on hand, not to mention an ample supply of hugs and kisses.

Again, thanks to all. There's nothing sweeter than the support of your community, friends and family.

Seen here during her first year in business on North Sea Road, Kathleen King is looking forward to making her simple, wholesome baked goods for the next 20 years.

DINING OUT

BOOKSTORE-RESTAURANT alliances are so common that many people start to salivate like Pavlov's dogs whenever they crack open a new book. Often these eateries are cappuccino and pastry spots. The Paradise Cafe in the BookHampton building in Sag Harbor is an entirely different genre.

The newcomer is a full-fledged restaurant serving breakfast, lunch and dinner with stylish food prepared by Stephen Putnam, a James Beard award-winning chef. The cafe is situated in the 100-year-old Paradise building on Main Street. For the last 50 years businesses here have used the Paradise name, most recently the Paradise Diner and an ice cream parlor before that.

Patrons enter by way of the book shop, walk through a barroom with an impressive copper-topped bar and enter a long, narrow, spare dining room. Framed sepia photographs of early Long Island nautical scenes dot the walls.

One of the best openers is the grilled Paradise flat bread with either a Parmesan aioli topper or one that resembles bruschetta with plum tomatoes, basil and goat cheese. (A combination plate is available.) Vying with the flat breads for best appetizer honors was a special salad with roasted yellow and red baby beets surrounding a nest of arugula enhanced by chunks of goat cheese and sauteed Vidalia onions.

A tricolored salad with dried Bing cherries, pine nuts and goat cheese truffles (fried balls of cheese) tossed in a balsamic vinaigrette was too sweet for my taste but had its champions. The field green salad in a sherry-shallot vinaigrette holds a few surprises: a mound of white bean salad and another of croutons.

Other good bets are the clean, fresh-tasting gazpacho, thick with pureed vegetables, and the steamed mussels in a very tasty Dijon-country ham broth. The surprise hit of one meal was the crisply fried calamari. The tender, crunchy ringlets shared the plate with romaine-radicchio slaw, the first cousin of a chopped salad, enlivened by a watermelon-miso emulsion.

One of the platters justifiably turning heads in the dining room is the eight-ounce hamburger ($14) cooked precisely to order, topped with crisp pancetta bacon and Gorgonzola cheese and mated with a mountain of thinly cut, skins-on French fries.

Two other scene stealers are the lightly sauteed sea bass perched atop a calamata olive couscous with a tomato fondue in a saffron broth, and the Moroccan glazed shrimp with roasted eggplant whipped potatoes. Ginger-crusted salmon with salsify, melted leeks and crisp lotus chips and spice-rubbed tuna atop a soba noodle cake with a soy-honey-vinegar sauce also made waves.

There are no duds among the desserts. The lavender creme brulee makes a grand entrance in what looks like a lidded glass candy dish. The chocolate obsession translates to a molten-center cupcake crowned with double chocolate ice cream and bourbon-chocolate sauce. Just as appealing was a warm apple tart topped with a ball of cinnamon ice cream rolled in walnuts with a drizzle of applejack caramel. Even the cooke plate is worthy: an assortment of homemade treats including chewy brownies and fun-to-eat Oreo-style sandwich cookies.

AT STONY BROOK AN INCREDIBLE JOURNEY BEGINS WITH A CARDBOARD BOAT.

The annual student/faculty Roth Pond Regatta. The rules are simple: all boats must be homemade, and only six materials can be used—only two of which, duct tape and paint, resist water. The rewards are better: a chance to develop skills that will help the student to navigate through college.

In many ways, the Regatta is a metaphor for how we approach education at Stony Brook. Just as faculty and students must work together, the undergraduate experience must be a collaborative process between learning and life.

This kind of thinking has led to Stony Brook's becoming one of the top public research universities, as shown in a recent study published by Johns Hopkins University Press. In only forty years we've become the national model for undergraduate education at a research university.

This kind of environment has led to some of the world's most important discoveries. More importantly, it leads to a wonderful college experience. After all, the more you learn from the journey, the more you appreciate the destination.

Even in a cardboard boat.

THERE'S A LOT TO DISCOVER AT STONY BROOK

- The most distant galaxies were discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- The cause of Lyme disease was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- Bar code technology was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- The link between smoking and emphysema was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.
- The world's most primitive fossil bird was discovered by Stony Brook faculty.

Stony Brook is an affirmative action/equal opportunity educator.

THE CIRCUS IS COMING TO TOWN!

CAPTIVITY IS HARMFUL FOR ANIMALS AND PEOPLE...

Circus animals eat, sleep, and defecate in cramped cages for most of their lives. Chained and caged animals trained with force become extremely stressed. Pushed too far by years of cruelty, animals frequently lash out against their captivity. Since 1985 over 150 people have been killed or severely injured by captive elephants.

Elephants naturally walk 20-30 miles per day, while in a circus they are always confined. Life in a circus is torturous for elephants and other wild animals as they cannot engage in natural behaviors. In the wild, animals are free to roam, hunt, play and form families. In the circus they are chained, cramped, exhausted, beaten and killed for "entertainment".

To confine an animal, having first brutally broken its spirit in order to make such a powerful animal subservient and "obedient", is immensely cruel, and in this day and age, ethically unacceptable. Captive animals are forced to perform unnatural acts through fear of their abusive trainers. No tiger would voluntarily jump through a flaming hoop. Educate your friends and family about the truth of the circus industry. Do not let your dollars contribute to the animals' pain.

GREEN MONKEYS

THE ADVENTURES OF SPIDER AND FLYTRAP
BY BETTY PARASKEVAS AND MICHAEL PARASKEVAS

Ghost

Kirk was a mean man. As he got older, he got meaner. He erected fences down at the beach at the borders of his property, and these fences went out into the water to prevent his neighbors from coming on his beach to collect the seaweed used for bedding and insulation. Kirk sued the town over seaweed rights and in the next dozen years, the local courts were filled with suits and appeals.

In the end, Kirk spent more than $40,000 in legal fees, a tremendous amount of money, and the neighbors spent about half that. Finally, Kirk won, but in the longer run, he lost. The effort had bankrupted him. Unable to pay his debts, he left Northwest and went to a poor house, the Arms House in Yaphank, where, later, he died.

You can walk around today and examine the estate of this stubborn and miserable man. You can find the foundations of his home about 150 feet to the right of the trail on a rise looking over Northwest Harbor. There are remains of fields and gardens surrounding it, there is a fresh water pond, an icehouse and an old root cellar. You'll also see wheel ruts and a roadbed and if you squat down and pick up a handful of soil, you'll see something else that caused the end of Northeast Village. The topsoil is just very thin. The last residents of Northwest left the area about

On the other hand, there is the remarkable story of a good Dutchman, three generations before Kirk, who owned a farm in the area during the American Revolution. His name was Issac Van Scoy, and to get to his house you walk south from Kirk's house along the harbor on Cooks Lane, and when the rutted road just naturally turns to the left, you go that way too and head east away from the shore.

Half a mile up you'll come to a place where five trails come together. This may have been the center of the village of Northwest. You're coming in from the north, along a trail called Whalebone Landing Road and when you reach the five corners you take the trail that's about ten o'clock in front of you. That will take you back across Old Northwest Harbor Road where, a half a mile further down. You'll come to the foundation of the Van Skoy home. Van Skoy moved here in the 1760's at the age of thirty. In 1757, at the age of twenty he had married Mercy Edwards of East Hampton and shortly thereafter he and his wife drove a team into these woods and cleared some land for a farm. By 1771, Van Scoys lived in a large two-story house near the pond on the property. They raised two children.

In 1776, the United States declared its independence from Britain. During the war, the entire South Fork lay under the occupation of the British who had a fleet in Gardiners Bay. Often, the British came to the farms of the South Fork to obtain live stock and fresh produce for the British troops fighting in the New York City area. For the East Hampton farmers who had signed an oath of allegiance to the king, there was compensation. Van Skoy was not one of them. For those who refused to sign, the British simply stole. It was for this reason that Van Skoy kept a three-tine pitchfork by his bed to protect his wife and children.

On one occasion some British officers paid Van Skoy fifty pounds for the foodstuffs they took. About a week later when the British troops aboard the ships realized they had made a mistake in Van Skoy's case, three of them were dispatched to demand that he return the money. They came into Van Skoy's house, asked him where he kept the money, and when he told them, they walked toward it. At that moment, Van Skoy went on the attack, stabbing with his pitchfork. He killed one Englishman and wounded the two others before being subdued and taken off as a prisoner.

Word traveled fast through East Hampton; Van Skoy was being held aboard a British frigate, and

Honk For Clean Water

Or Step On The Gas For Polluted Water: A Protest In East Hamptons Town

By Dan Rattiner

Driving down Abraham's Path in Amagansett the other morning, Cat and I came to the corner where Abraham's Path crosses Accabonac Highway. There was lots going on there. On our left, there were people carrying signs reading STOP THE GOLF COURSE and SAVE THE ENVIRONMENT. To our right, there was a man with a white beard carrying a sign almost as big as he was reading HONK IF YOU WANT CLEAN WATER. Traffic was heavy. People were honking their horns all over the place. The man pointed to me.

"Honk," he shouted.

I honked.

Cat, who always speaks her mind, mumbled "Get a life."

We went on through the intersection, further south on Abraham's Path and to both the left of us and to the right of us, people were driving golf carts, walking down fairways and putting on greens. Apparently it was the opening day weekend for the privately owned East Hampton Golf Course.

The battle about whether to open this golf course has been going on for more than twenty years and seems, in the end, to have hinged on the discovery of some legal stupidity.

The golf course construction started back in 1977 when builder Pat Bistran used his bulldozers, which were idle on weekends, to begin to clear the land for golf course fairways in a woods he had bought. The clearing of the fairways took almost three years in this leisurely fashion. And then, the project just stopped. It remained stopped for fifteen years. I never knew why.

During these fifteen years, objections to the project were because when Bistran bulldozed down all the trees he made a big mess. And the mess was never removed. Who wanted to look at it? But then, about 1990, the nature of the objections changed. Now people opposed the project because they said the golf course would pollute the ground water. One of the people active in leading this command initiation fees of $200,000 and more. And that was just the money needed in order to apply. The second thing was that Bill Esseks, one of this areas sharpest lawyers, was doing research on behalf of the Bistrans when suddenly, it dawned on him.

He told the Bistrans to withdraw their application for a clubhouse. Instead, they should get commitments for memberships, use the commitments for bank loans, and build the fairways and greens. Then they could just go out and play golf.

What Esseks had realized — and he proved to be absolutely right — was that legally there was no law against just going out in your backyard and hitting a few golf balls. Of course you needed a big backyard. And in the Bistran's case, they had a very big backyard. As for the matter of whether they could charter themselves as an official club, why they had gotten that permission when they got their approvals in 1977.

So that is what the Bistrans did. And here it was, opening day, and the golfers were out, and the pickets were out, and it was a grand old time in the American tradition.

I should note that in Southampton, during the last ten years of this big golf war, there was a similar legal battle (with a similar ending) about whether Southampton Hospital could use the vacant one acre lot across from the hospital they'd purchased as a parking lot. The neighbors were opposition was Alex Baldwin, the actor, who lives nearby.

What Esseks has realized — and he proved to be absolutely right — was that legally there was no law against just going out in your backyard and hitting a few golf balls.

By 1994, the Bistrans were locked in a legal battle with the Town of East Hampton, which, opposing the project, was refusing to grant permission to build a clubhouse. Without a clubhouse, naturally, there could be no golf course. Or so people said. For the next four years, the lawyers battled each other from pillar to post. The Bistrans were almost out of money.

But then, two strange things happened. One was that golf became all the rage. There were private courses opening around the country that could up in arms. There would be activity there day and night.

Almost at the same time as Esseks was making his discovery, a hospital lawyer made the amazing discovery that the whole ten year fight had been a waste of time because there was nothing to prevent the hospital from paving this land. To build a building on it they needed a permit. To just pave it, they did not. They paved it. They drew white lines on it. They parked cars on it. End of story.

I am happy to report, however, that the hospital, in deference to the neighbors, planted trees, bushes, roses and a beautiful Victorian decorative picket fence along the property line. They did this at considerable expense, which was authorized by Dr. John Ferry, the hospital's recently departed President, who during this period was in the middle of quietly spending this institution to the brink of bankruptcy, but that's another story.

As for the man with the HONK IF YOU WANT CLEAN WATER, it reminds me of a big sign I once marched back and forth when I was a teenager. The year was 1957, I was in my freshman year in college, and hadn't gotten a clue yet about the state of the world.

On the other hand, I was young and ready for just about anything.

"There's going to be a bunch of us going to picket the Woolworth's up by the railroad station," my roommate said. "Want to come?"

On the way, sitting in the back seat, I wondered what we were picketing about. I didn't want to appear uncool, however, so I didn't ask.

Getting out of the car in front of the Woolworth's, I was handed a great big sign that read SEGREGATION IS WRONG. I knew that. I joined the line on the sidewalk out front of the Woolworth's, and along with everybody else, began marching back and forth holding up the sign.

It was a heavy sign and it was a hot day. After fifteen minutes, I began getting tired, but since nobody else was showing signs of getting tired, I soldiered on. At twenty minutes, a car came by with some kids from the town in it and they jeered at us. At thirty minutes, I began thinking about the sign.

Segregation is surely wrong, I thought. But this is take no prisoners way of saying it. It rubs me the wrong way.

Five minutes pass.

This sign is bull headed. How do we know segregation is wrong? Discrimination is wrong. There is no doubt about that. But segregation? Another five minutes pass.

People keep to themselves. There's Chinatown. There's Little Italy. There's Harlem. Is that wrong? People naturally like to be segregated. They like being among their own. There's comfort in it.

Another five minutes pass.

Yeah but look what happens when we have segregation. All the good hospitals are in the white people's area. All the bad hospitals are in the black people's area. Some of these segregated towns have schools that have maybe two books in the whole school.

Another five minutes.

And look at segregated washrooms. Or segregated lunch counters. They're disgusting. Unfit for dogs.

Another five minutes.

Well, what if there were segregated facilities but all the facilities were EQUAL? What if black facilities were even BETTER than white facilities to make up for what has gone on up until now?

I never did reach any definite conclusion. At the end of an hour, the protest leader said our shift was up, there were others who wanted to carry the signs, and so we were free to go. I shoved my big sign at him. Then I got in the back of the car and as we drove home, commenced brooding.

This was my introduction to the demonstrations and protests that were to define the next decade. •

WHY ZEPPLINS HATE NEW YORK

In A Dirigible

Richard Stans, Roman Coke, The Crazy Elemenopee And "French Fries Available"

By Dan Rattiner

Somewhere out there is Richard Stans. He's a very important person, particularly to children under the age of ten. He's in the Pledge of Allegiance. The entire Republic is dedicated to him.

"...and to the Republic, for Richard Stans."

Richard Stans, you know who you are.

For me, it was that very famous photograph of the Empire State Building. The photograph was taken in 1933, the very year the building was completed, the very tallest and most remarkable building in the world. The Observation Deck was set up on the 86th floor — it is there today — and above that there is an elevator that takes you all the way up to floor number 102 and the Dirigible Mast.

What is a Dirigible Mast? I refer you to the photograph. In it is the dirigible Akron, long as a football field, floating 1,000 feet up right alongside the Dirigible Mast of the Empire State Building, attached to it with cables. People disembarked from dirigibles there, climbing from the passenger cabin along a stairway through the interior of the dirigible to a little door at the front. From there, they walked down a gangway to an entry door just below the Dirigible Mast and entered the 102nd floor elevator lobby of the building. The Empire State Building was a Port of Entry. The Dirigibles would come from Germany and England. And then on the third "docking," they realized it was too dangerous. There were high winds up there. They decided never to use that mast again for a dirigible.

Anyway, that photograph is what I thought of when I was ten years old, reciting the Pledge of Allegiance.

"...one nation, in a dirigible, with liberty and justice for all."

This conversation about Richard Stans and Dirigibles had come up the other night at Nick &

Toni's Restaurant, where we were having dinner with some New York friends. One was a man who had emigrated from Russia a few years ago.

I had ordered a rum and coke. I almost always order a rum and coke. And Mischa, my Russian friend, often has heard me do it.

"For the longest time," he said, referring to my she thought it was elemenopee. The longest letter in the alphabet.

"I always thought 'P' was a separate letter," the first woman said. "It went elemenopee and then P."

We all howled.

Mischa, in another life, was a sailor in the Russian Navy.

"When I first got here," he said, "I couldn't believe how many stores there were in New York that sold boating equipment. There were nearly two stores on every block. They had big signs in the window. SALE."

Mischa had been looking for work. He'd read the classifieds in The New York Times. There were an unbelievable number of opportunities involving French fries.

"It would read 'Exclusive business opportunity for the right person. Make big money. Low investment. French fries available.'"

Then somebody told him there was a word "franchise."

One woman had a hilarious time with drink orders one year when she worked as a waitress.

"It was one of these restaurants where the waitress would wear a purse around her waist. I'd get the drink order from the customer, go to the bartender and pay him. Then the customer would pay me. The customer would order a Flaming Purple Mascara. It was a noisy restaurant. That's what I heard. I'd go to the bartender and tell him 'one Flaming Purple Mascara' and he'd figure out what the customer meant. Did it every time. I hadn't a clue."

We all knew about the Twilight's Last Screaming. (Star Spangled Banner.) And we all knew about God Shedding His Face on Thee. And Crowning Thy Good With Brotherhood.

Except, of course, Mischa.

I welcome contributions to this column. •

The Akron about to dock drink order, "I wondered what was a Roman coke? And so popular here in America. Finally, somebody told me."

A woman at the table asked if anybody had trouble with the dreaded elemenopee. She'd had a terrible time dealing with it in first grade. Another woman said would soon be put on trial in Sag Harbor, where the prospects were not good.

Late that night a group of East Hampton men rode out and boarded the frigate, found Van Scoy, untied him and quietly helped him through a hatch to safety. For the next four years as the war raged, he was hidden away in East Hampton. The British never found him.

When Issac Van Skoy's first child was born in 1758 Van Skoy planted a four-foot oak tree in his yard. Isaac Van Skoy died in 1810 at the age of 83 and you can see the tombstone and burial grounds of both he and his wife on the property. The oak tree however, continued to grow. In 1934, nearly 150 years later, the tree was ninety-eight feet high and measured 17 feet, 4 inches in circumference one foot above the ground. It was one of the largest oaks ever seen in this community and it stayed standing until September of 1938, when it came crashing down in the great hurricane. You can see bits and pieces of this giant oak still lying on the ground today.

Northwest School Monument

Many people complain that the Hamptons aren't the bucolic and rural community they, used to be, but there are places like Northwest, like the Long Pond section of Bridgehampton or the Deerfield section of Water Mill or northern Shinnecock in Southampton, west of Conscience Point and North Sea Road, all of which involves walks through trails and forests.

Here in East Hampton you can start at the corner of Main Street and Newtown Lane and head three miles east to Amagansett following the heavy traffic of BMW's driven by Hollywood types with gold chains, actors and starlets with long flowing hair, bankers and writers, artists and stockbrokers. Or, you can go three miles, due northwest and experience what I've described above.

Saving A Tennis Court

Big Party Last Saturday In Montauk Brings Out The Stars To Save An 80 Year Old Building

By Joan Zandell

People who live in Montauk like to say that it is a very special community filled with remarkable people. This Saturday evening, the members of this community set out to prove it.

Peter and Najma Beard threw a double-billed bash to save and restore an old glass enclosed tennis court building for the Montauk Playhouse Community Center Foundation and it was attended by both luminaries and locals. Attendees included Paul Simon, Paul Morrissey, Charles Henri Ford, the unofficial mayor of Montauk Jimmy Hewitt, Ingrid and Sunshine Lemme, Roberta Gosman, and a nameless, beautiful couple who arrived and left in their own, small helicopter that they parked on the corner of the Beard bluff overlooking the ocean. It had been raining and overcast since Tuesday, but miraculously at around six o'clock, the sun appeared coating the party and blessing its members in a golden glow that lasted until sunset. There was plenty of fabulous food and a small band to entertain the guests as they roamed the bluffs. Simultaneously, our dashing host and hostess, Peter Beard and his wife Najma entertained and cajoled their guests moving elegantly from group to group. By seven o'clock the party on the bluff had moved to the Lighthouse where the next leg of the journey awaited us.

A tent had been erected on the grounds of the Lighthouse which housed not only the food and drink, but the things that were to be sold at live and silent auction. In addition, protected from the elements was the spectacular band LOUP GAROU (pronounced loo-ga-roo) who have played with Paul Simon, Bryan Ferry, David Byrne, Robert Palmer, Bob Weir, Talking Heads, Joan Osborne, Ras

Cloud and Buckwheat Zydeco. They were the evening's entertainment, getting people to dance and groove as they walked through the tent sampling morsels of food, and eyeing their future purchases.

The two most coveted items of the live auction were original photographs of Mohamad Ali with a hand print, and Michael Jordan with a hand print, both by Walter Iooss. After the purchase, both were donated to the playhouse by the new owners.

But there were also works by Peter Beard, an original M.A.S.H. television script autographed by Alan Alda, a poster and screenplay from the movie Scarface, autographed by Al Pacino, and a week recently the Montauk Playhouse) was built by Carl Fisher in 1928 and donated to the Town of East Hampton in 1999 by Joseph Oppenheimer, Richard Burnhard and Michael Buffa.

As the Montauk Playhouse Community Center Foundation pamphlet states, "The vision for the future of the Montauk Playhouse includes a year-round theatre to house cultural activities with a professional stage to showcase drama, films, art and dance as well as an art exhibition hall. For seniors, an adult day care and nutrition center offering social services, dining, and recreational programs. For our families, a day care center for working parents, a youth center with counseling, a cantina, a pool for water sports and recreational swimming, game rooms, indoor sports activities, continuing education, learning new crafts and a year round place to socialize and meet friends."

A special thanks to Gurney's Inn, Nick & Toni's, Rowdy Hall, Ruschmeyers, After Fishing, Navy Road, Shagwong, The Harvest, Pig 'n Whistle, Gosmans, The Dock, Cyril's Fish House, Blue Parrot, Crow's Nest, Il Farole, Montaukett, Pizza Village, Luigi's, Old Shebeen, Wok n' Roll, Ocean View Farmers Market, Dave's Grill, Caswell's, Montauk Yacht Club, Pyster Pond, Lenny's Dockside, West Cove, Four Oaks General Store, all the people who donated all the wonderful things for the live and silent auction, and anyone and everyone who donated their time and energy to make the event the success that it was.

If you were unable to attend the celebration, you can still make a difference. Please send your contribution to: Montauk Playhouse Community Center, P.O. Box 1612, Montauk, N.Y. 11954. • on the island of Eleuthera. There were autographed hockey sticks from Sylvain Lefebvre, Kevin Hatcher, Stephane Quintal and Alexandre Daigle of the New York Rangers, to mention just a few.

Father Peter was among the guests at the Lighthouse, roaming good-naturedly through the tent, meeting and greeting, unable to resist tasting the occasional dish and shaking a caring, outstretched hand.

It was a great party by any standards, and the beauty of it, of course, is that the celebration is making a dream come true.

THE POWER OF Change

Spend time with the family...conserve energy and save money!

Summer is a wonderful time to enjoy the outdoors with family and friends. It is also a time when electric demand is at its peak. While a sufficient supply of electricity is available to meet normal summer demands on Long Island, conservation and efficient use of energy will help ensure the reliability of the system and save you money at the same time.

LIPA urges you to follow these summer conservation tips:

- Eliminate non-essential electrical consumption
- Purchase appliances with the highest energy efficiency rating
– Energy Star rated appliances are the most energy efficient
- Run appliances – dishwashers, washing machines, etc, at night
- Set refrigerator/freezer units at the most efficient temperature
- Run pool filters at night or before noon
- Put air conditioners on timers, and do not leave them on when not at home
- Set air conditioner thermostats at 78 degrees
- Clean and replace air conditioner filters for maximum efficiency
- Use fans to circulate cool air, which will help cut air conditioner use
- Install attic exhaust fans to reduce cooling needs
- Use energy saving light bulbs

For more information on energy conservation, call LIPA's Energy InfoLine at 1-800-692-2626 or visit our Web site at www.lipower.org.

Remembering A Forgotten War

Author Jim Brady Writes Not About Gin Or Further Lane This Time But Korea

By Ben Amato

James Brady took the two hundred people who attended the Friday at Five lecture to a place generally forgotten, the frozen mountains of Korea, 1950. It was there that one battalion of American Marines faced twelve divisions of Korean and Chinese soldiers in weather so cold the dead could not be buried. At the Chosen Reservoir, Changjin on the maps, "two great armies would meet, but no one knew this. Great men fight great war," said James Brady and his new book, The Marines in Autumn, celebrates the soldiers who fought beside him in that little remembered police action.

"Let me tell you, it was a war," Mr. Brady assured the crowd in the back field of the Hampton Library. "I graduated college with a degree and was a second lieutenant in the Marine Reserve. The Korean War started; I hadn't counted on that. I had one year of fighting in Korea in a rifle battalion as an intelligence officer. I did my job. It didn't make me better but different. Nothing compares with that experience."

James Brady's memories of his time in battle were chronicled in his 1990 memoir The Coldest War, but this work of non-fiction did not capture the attention of our nation. Critically acclaimed and nominated for a Pulitzer Prize, "a lesser book won," added Brady. His new novel, though a work of fiction, relies heavily on the real men and experiences that made up "the defining year or two of my life." When asked about the power of fiction, he replied that "with non-fiction you tend to be cold, crisp and efficient. With fiction you let yourself go. This is emotional material and I handle it emotionally."

Irwin Winkler will handle it that way also, for he bought the rights to The Marines of Autumn and will fashion it into a major motion picture. Brady was thrilled that the man who produced Rocky, Raging Bull and The Right Stuff will be responsible for bringing the story of this surrounding novel stands as a monument for the ordeal all Korean veterans faced.

"There were twenty thousand marines and thirteen thousand casualties, most from frostbite. It was so cold the plasma would not go into solution. The corpsman could not change dressings but there was one good thing, it's so damn cold the blood coagulates." Brady added that one of the real life main characters in his book, General Chesty Puller commented that, "if we don't drop them too much, some might make it." Only some did.

The novel follows the retreat from the Tabek Mountains, during a typical winter with minus twenty degree weather. But Brady noted that the word retreat was not in General Puller's vocabulary. "He called it a fighting advance in another direction." This colorful character grows to mythic proportions, as the pages turn. When told that the entire battalion was surrounded, Chesty replied, "That's good, they can't get away now." But strong words could not dismiss the terrible situation they were in, that "even the tanks had the dead and wounded stacked like cordwood on top of them."

The marines always take their dead, Brady lectured the audience, who sat silently through the entire hour. Reading selections from the novel, James had everyone reliving the brutal months that his novel depicts. In an especially moving rounded battalion of marines to local theaters. "We're getting old. I'm 71 and it will be nice to see ourselves on the silver screen."

James Brady was a raw twenty-one year old commissioned officer, but the men who served beside him, like the late Senator John H. Chafee, "made me a man, an officer and a Marine." During the funeral for the senator, Chafee's son Zachariah read passages from Brady's book. That is because the words, events and themes contained in the section, the situation for the marines was horrendous. The Chinese cut off an escape to the south. They were also pushing hard from the north and the weather was twenty-five below at dawn. The battalion had to move and could no longer carry their fallen comrades home, but the ground was too frozen to dig graves. Bulldozer blades shattered like eggshells and finally a solution was found, with root cellars in a nearby village being used to give the dead a proper burial. Officers were rounded up, each of their dead carefully placed below the frost line and twenty-one gun salutes echoed through the hills. No bugler could play taps, "their lips would freeze to the mouthpiece."

James paused and looked out beyond the crowd.

He gazed down and continued from his novel, but this time his voice breaking. He spoke of the tanks moving back and forth, crushing the dirt down, so the ground would flatten and seal the dead marines below the soon to be frozen soil. "I won't leave them to the dogs and wolves from these frozen hills," were the last lines from General Pully.

Though fifty years separate James Brady from the frozen dead left behind in the mountains of Korea, he rubbed his nose and squinted up his eyes and said, "thanks for putting up with me. I get emotional." So did many in the audience.

In a question and answer session that ended this week's Friday at Five lecture, James warned of the continuing tension that marks the Korean Peninsula. "North and South Korea never made peace. There are thirty-seven thousands United States soldiers still there. North Korea has one million men. They're bait, just meat on a stick. I don't trust North Korea, they're a sad sack case."

The hour ended and the crowd quickly lined up for autographed copies of his novel, the latest of the ten he has published. His other works include a series set on the East End, murder mysteries in Further Lane and Gin Lane, two streets close to his home in East Hampton. But under the gray skies of this end of July afternoon, thoughts lingered back to the moving selections he had read. Maybe the forgotten war in Korea would not be so easily forgotten again.

Internal Documents Reveal A Morass Of Problems At Millstone Nuclear Plants

By Jerry Cimisi

The Millstone nuclear power plants across the Sound in Connecticut continue to cause public concern. Internal memos and daily operation reports released by Northeast Utilities, have only increased that concern. For instance, on May 15, 1999, in a four hour seventeen minute period, emergency procedures were resorted to seven times at Millstone Three. This was due to defective equipment. Throughout 1999 there were several instances of complete communication breakdown between the control room, the reactor and the spent fuel area. This was apparently due to a flaw in the system that had been noted in 1995 but not corrected.

It was in 1995, a year before Millstone was shut down by the NRC because of safety and operation violations, that a crane operator was not able to place the spent fuel rods into the pool correctly. When the incident was investigated the crane operator said that one of the major reasons for his performance was that the entire spent fuel pool area was so dim he could not properly see what he was doing – because Northeast Utilities, as an economy measure, was notorious for not replacing burnt out lighting by the pool. These lightbulbs cost $2,000.

On July 19 a hearing for public comment was held in Hartford by the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission regarding the proposal by Northeast Utilities, which operates Millstone, to increase the number of spent fuel rods in the spent fuel pool of Millstone Unit 3.

Spent fuel rods are exactly that: radioactive rods that have been used in the reactor. They are stored in a pool of water – the spent fuel pool. Water shields from radiation to some degree. Currently reactors around the country are in the position of having to store more and more of their spent fuel because as of yet the government has not been able to provide for a central storage of spent radioactive fuel. Northeast Utilities is asking the NRC for the spent fuel pool capacity of Millstone Unit 3 to be doubled.

Attorney Nancy Burton, who has been enlisted by the Connecticut Coalition Against Millstone and the Long Island Coalition Against Millstone, in a phone interview prior to the hearing, spoke about the dangers of such an increase in the spent fuel pool. "With an increase in the capacity, the rods will be closer together. If a rod is too close to another, there is an increased danger of criticality. In other words, an accidental nuclear reaction."

Burton is also representing the above groups in an appeal concerning the water intake system at the Millstone plants. There are three units at Millstone. Unit One is permanently shut down and is set to be decommissioned. The other two units had been shut down for several years because of operating violations. Unit Three went back on line in 1998, Unit Two in 1999. The reactors take in – and discharge – several thousand gallons of water per day in order to cool the reactors. Along with the water is whatever marine life is in the vicinity, such as fish. Conservation groups, such as Fish Unlimited of Shelter Island, were charging that this practice was killing large numbers of fish and that the plants should have a self contained cooling system. Fish Unlimited was one of the primary parties that brought Northeast Utilities to Court last year to force the company to change the plants' design. This was unsuccessful. Burton is appealing that decision.

The current suit against the increase of spent fuel capacity has brought to light internal documents at Millstone that, in Ms. Burton's words, must only increase the layperson's worry "Millstone is an accident waiting to happen."

Attorney Nancy Burton

"During the process of discovery we found sloppy record keeping, a practice of cutting corners (as in taking so long to replace lighting around the spent fuel pool), illegal discharges into the Sound of industrial cleaners and falsifying training records. In other words, Northeast was telling the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that certain employees were qualified to work in their positions respective to running the reactor but in fact they were not qualified."

A 1996 cover story of Time featured whistleblower George Galatis, who spoke about improper and dangerous refueling procedures at the Unit One reactor. "This was all documented, but the NRC did not do anything about until Galatis went public," said Burton.

Galatis was not the only employee to agitate for change within Millstone. But, at the time, Northeast Utilities was listening to no one. According to Burton, NU fired a large number of employees who were rocking the boat. "About one hundred former employees brought suit against Northeast in 1996," said Burton. "All this finally made the Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection investigate Northeast."

An internal memo at Northeast Utilities dated June 24, 1999 details the many technical difficulties that plagued the restart of Millstone 3. The memo is from J.F. Beaupre, Unit 3 Technical Support Engineering and it was sent to three individuals on Nuclear Oversight for the plant, D.E. Anderson, N.G. Bergh and D.C. Gorence.

The memo begins with a summary: "During core offload and download, the fuel handling system experienced numerous and varied equipment failures.... Although these equipment failures did not result in actual fuel damage, the number and variety of failures demonstrated that the fuel handling system was not adequately prepared to support refueling operations."

The memo goes on to detail equipment problems:

"1. The fuel transfer cart had difficulty traversing the final few inches to the fuel upender... After core offload, personnel identified that the cart holddown latch springs were binding and stopping the cart from travelling to the end stop...."

"2. The SIGMA refueling machine gripper and stop plate limit switch cable failed, resulting in intermittent problems while latching and unlatching fuel assemblies in the core at the upender.... A cable replacement eliminated the problem."

"3. The fuel transfer cart holddown latch failed to return to center when the cart left the fuel building end stop...further investigation is required."

"4. The spent fuel bridge hoist manual drive chain misaligned with the tensioner sprocket while raising a fuel assembly from the upender. This caused the hoist to stop and required the crane operator to lower the fuel assembly back into the upender...."

"5. While closing the fuel transfer tube gate valve, the reach rod slipped down in its support and the PEO from fully closing the valve. The reach rod was repositioned...."

"6. The communications system for the refueling stations (i.e. Control Room, SIGMA and Spent Fuel Building) was unreliable."

"7. The SIGMA refueling machine frequently needed to be reinitialized after jogging small distances because the control system does not register these movements correctly...."

Joe Pillittere, spokesman for the Millstone plant, said that the mechanical difficulties of the spring of 1999 were a "whole evolution" while refueling Millstone 3, a process that was observed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and that the problems the memos and logs delineated have been corrected. "They had to be," he said, "or the NRC would not have allowed us to continue operations."

Mr. Pillittere spoke at length about increasing the capacity of the spent fuel pool. He said that many of those who are opposed to this, imagining it could cause an uncontrollable nuclear reaction, perhaps did not understand basic facts pertaining to the matter.

"Unit 3 is not being used to its full capacity. It is true we want to increase the number of rods stored in the spent fuel pool, but the pool was designed to hold 2,000 rods; right now we have about 400 rods. It's as if I had a dump truck that could hold ten tons but I have been using it to hold only five. Then I use it for ten tons. I haven't increased the size of the dump truck, I have only used it at a greater capacity than I had in the past."

Pillittere said that currently Millstone 3 is licensed to house 756 spent fuel rods. "Even though we have the capacity to house more rods, we have to apply to the NRC to change that number." Pillittere added that an outside firm, Holtec, had done a safety analysis in regards to increasing the number of rods in the pool.

The racks that hold the spent fuel rods are like a honeycomb. The rods are thin, "like the thickness of a finger," said Pillittere, and packed with pellets of fissionable material, U-235, along with U-238. "The U-235 is fissionable, the U-238 isn't. The pellets are four percent fissionable material, because this is nuclear fuel designed to heat water to make steam to turn a turbine, not to make a bomb. In a bomb you'd have about ninety percent fissionable material." The racks that hold the rods are of stainless steel, and the new racks that will be installed are of a material that absorbs neutrons more efficiently than old racking, Pillittere said.

He said that simple water itself is an excellent shield against radiation. "You could stand twenty feet from the edge of the pool and not get any radiation. Maybe if you stood there the whole day you'd get a very small amount. The pool is forty feet deep and the highest rod has to be twenty to twenty-three feet below the surface of the water."

Pillittere said the NRC would probably take a few months before it ruled if Millstone 3 could increase its spent fuel capacity and added that other nuclear plants have "reracked."

The ultimate problem is that the government has no storage place for spent nuclear fuel from commercial reactors, though it had promised to supply such a site or sites years ago. Thus utilities must increase the amount of spent nuclear fuel they store. And, of course, the government hardly can refuse them, since it had once assured the nuclear industry this would not happen in the first place.

By Joan Zandell

At two and a half years of age, Rona sat in the kitchen with her mother and wrote a poem on a napkin. By the time she was seven or eight she knew that she was going to have a job and that it would be as a writer. Despite the fact that her mother did not work and she was an only child, she knew that she would have a career. Says Jaffe, "It didn't occur to me that girls shouldn't do that." The only women she knew who worked, were schoolteachers. At that time, if women worked it was because they had to, not because they liked it. Jaffe says her mother liked the fact that Rona wanted to be a writer because it was non-threatening: it wasn't going to take her away, in that respect it was harmless. It wasn't like being an actress. Had she chosen to be a painter, that would have been OK too.

Rona Jaffe went to the prestigious Dalton School in New York and graduated from Radcliffe at nineteen. Without a resume, she went to Seventeen magazine, short story in hand, and asked for a job hoping that there would be a position available in the mailroom. The mailroom job turned out to be unavailable, but they offered to publish the short story. She was delighted! Needless to say, it was not the first time that Rona had wanted to sell a story. She had been submitting her stories to magazines for publication from the time she was nine-years-old. When I asked her how could she bear the rejection all those years Jaffe answers, "Well, they didn't know I was nine years old. They simply thought I was a writer who couldn't write. But later, by the time I was thirteen or fourteen, I hated not being published. At the time, my idea of total fame was to have a book in the bookstore and an article in a magazine in a magazine store so that I could show my friends. That was as far as I could see. The things that happened afterward were completely unexpected."

How did her first book come about? "I was working at Fawcett as an editor, and I was writing for magazines on the side. I realized that I could make just as much money writing as I earned at my job. So I quit and told them that I was going to write a book. They threw me a going away party, so I realized that I really had to write a novel now."

Jaffe wrote a novella, about seventy-two pages long that her agent sent to everybody, and everybody rejected it. But they all thought that Jaffe was a good writer, and invited her in to have coffee and talk. At the time, they couldn't figure out that what was wrong with the novella was that it didn't have a plot. They simply didn't notice because Jaffe wrote so well. Eventually, her writing got her a call from an editor at Simon and Schuster who thought that Jaffe could write "a hell of a novel" and if she could write the first fifty pages, he'd give her a contract.

Five months, five days and seven-hundred and seventeen pages later, came The Best of Everything. It was Jaffe's first novel, and it took about a minute for it to be made into a major Hollywood movie starring Joan Crawford and Hope Lange. How did she go from the first fifty pages of a novel, to a full-blown Hollywood picture with two of Hollywood's hottest actresses?

Jaffe was planning a trip to Hollywood with a friend from college, Phyllis. Phyllis happened to be the secretary to the editor from Simon and Schuster. She planned to look up an old boyfriend who had recently confessed to being sorry that he had dumped her. They phoned from New York attempting to look him up at his office, but instead were transferred to a producer. Jaffe wanted to meet movie stars. She said, "I want to meet Rock Hudson!" The producer responded, "He flies." Jaffe said, "What's that?" She went on with her next request, "I want to meet Tab Hunter." The producer responded again, "He flies!" Jaffe said, "What's that?" She could see he wasn't getting her any dates, but he offered to take her to the commissary for lunch when she arrived. Then, the producer mentioned that he was looking for a novel about working girls - a modern day Kitty Foyle. So Jaffe got Kitty Foyle out of the library in New York, and after reading it decided that she could do better. After all, Kitty Foyle was written by a man, what did he know? She was a working girl. Finally, over lunch at the commissary in Hollywood, Jaffe was trying to think of something interesting to say to a producer who was all of twenty-four years old. So she said that she was going to write that book about working girls. And her friend Phyllis chimed in, "And we're going to publish it!"

Well, they returned to New York by train, because Phyllis was afraid to fly. No one was on the train, describes Jaffe, "It was like the last voyage of the Twentieth Century Limited. There were four salesmen and us and we played poker with them the whole time, and won and took their money. They were banging on the door to our car trying to get in; one was a cigarette salesman who was leaving out small tasting packs of three cigarettes on the doorstep, as bribes, that's how cheap he was."

"But as we pulled into New York I had such a feeling of excitement that I decided to call the book The Best of Everything and have the book open with girls going to work in New York."

In addition to Joan Crawford and Hope Lange, the other cast members were Louis Jourdan, Brian Ahearn, Suzy Parker, Diane Baker, and Steven Boyd. The film received a lot of publicity and Rona Jaffe became a star overnight.

What was that sort of fame like? "It was very unreal," says Jaffe, "I was twenty-six when the book came out. It was weird. I kept wishing I could stand aside and just look at this person that everybody was making a fuss about and know what it felt like to be her. It just felt unreal. And by the time it felt real, I was onto my second book. Which took me to Brazil, and away from home."

The 1960s heralded a new age. Rona Jaffe was asked to appear on the Tonight Show with Johnny Carson. What most people don't know is that the shows were scripted. You saw the script prior to being on. But you had to remember it because Johnny was the only one with the script. Now, digressing was encouraged, but returning to the questions was also encouraged. So appearing on the show was not as simple as it seemed. You had to remember the lines and be funny. Unless you were a movie star. According to Jaffe, "If you were a movie star you could be really dead boring. But if you were a writer you had to be interesting. Of course it was a plus if you were funny." Jaffe appeared often on the Phil Donohue Show talking about how you could live with your boyfriend without marrying him - a topic that was considered absolutely scandalous at the time.

In 1972, Jaffe wrote The Other Woman, in which the other woman does not want to marry her boyfriend at the end! People found the subject matter threatening because everything that had been considered proper in the fifties, was being overthrown in the seventies. "People were threatened, and I was sort of scared before a live audience. But people were very nice."

Virginia Graham had a weekly show called Girl Talk, where Jaffe was a regular. Graham would refer to Jaffe as "my little beatnik," and whenever Rona would talk about not marrying one's boyfriend, Graham would clutch her chest, feign a fainting spell and say, "Oh my heart!"

About the same time, Jaffe joined the Actor's Studio Playwright's Unit where Jaffe took acting classes with Marilyn Monroe, Shelley Winters and Paul Newman. When asked if that helped her writing Jaffe answered, "Well you get to see what the lines do and what the actor does. It's extremely helpful to the writer who is writing for the movies. You have this extra element which is the person. So you don't need so many words. I knew it wasn't the same to write a book as it was to write a play. I always enjoyed the feeling that you were at school with people and so they never acted like they were big stars, they acted like they were just anybody. You could act with them because it was school. They were learning different things. Some of them were learning how to do different things than what they were famous for because it gave them more range and gave them a chance to do more of what they wanted to do. I mean, Shelley Winters did Lady MacBeth. She was fabulous! I mean, who would give her the chance to play Lady MacBeth? Nobody, so she did it at the Actor's Studio."

Morals and mores fascinate Jaffe. She believes that we are the creatures of our time, that we believe what we are told to believe. "I always tell

Navratilova Still Holds Center Court

By Ben Amato

Martina Navratilova arrived at Sportime, in Quogue, last weekend, for the season finale against the New York Hamptons. With a hard day of travel behind her and a long evening of professional tennis ahead, she hopped out of her limousine and tended to business. Heads turned as she blew into the lobby and up the stairs for interviews and photos. "I'm getting too old for this traveling. Four hours on the plane, an hour to get here, ten minutes with you folks and thirty minutes for stretching."

But once the questions started, her love of tennis and her life took center court, as she spoke of her induction into the Tennis Hall of Fame. "It was nice seeing everybody reunited and in the building... I just hope they don't un-induct me," she added a bit self-consciously, referring to her singles play, which has dropped a notch from her glory days at the top of the ladder.

But she loves the World TeamTennis style of play, "It's a nice change of pace." Being retired for five years had her feeling disconnected from the world she once ruled, so by joining and playing for the Schenectady Electrics, Martina gets her "competitive fix."

For this legend who changed the game of women's tennis, the components that marked her excellence are still there. At forty-four, her body is lean, agile and her reflexes verge on spontaneous. Saturday night's match against the New York Hamptons had her rooted at the net for almost every point. Serve and charge, dominate and win. Her net play during the doubles matches resembled something more like pinball than tennis, with the ball being merely a yellow streak, too fast for the fourteen hundred fans to follow.

She credits her excellent physical shape to Renee Richards, who was her first real conditioning coach. "I was twenty-six and time was running out. It was then I got serious," and the dividends of her active lifestyle and exercise regiment still propels her on and off the court. For the last twelve years, Martina has been living in Aspen, Colorado, "an athlete's dream." She's leads an active outdoors life; hiking, biking and a world of other energetic interests.

She fits all of her sports equipment into her Subaru, a car she loves and now is a spokesperson for. Five years ago she took a picture of all her "stuff" packed into her Legacy and sent it to the company. They loved it and asked her to be a spokeswoman, reaching out to "the active lifestyle woman," as she phrased it. "That could not happen ten years ago. I did fine (with endorsements) in Japan and Europe but Americans are messed up with sexuality. I felt I never needed to apologize for what I am." Martina then added that, "I've sold a lot of cars."

The road that began for Martina at age five in the Czech Republic, with a racket in her hand, now has her in the Tennis Hall of Fame, with hundreds of titles in both women's singles and doubles play. After decades of changing the world, she now plans on touring it for fun and adventure. The allure of Africa has her planning trips to Botswana and South Africa, and Kenya has a soft spot in her heart. She missed out on a balloon ride over the Serengeti but followed in a jeep and got "the best photo of a lioness in the bush."

A comeback is contemplated, with a new doubles partner and re-commitment to the game. The upcoming U.S. Open probably will not be entered, for there is a nagging injury to her Achilles' tendon. Coaching might also be a challenge in the future for this woman who has done everything there is to do in professional tennis. But with the W.T.T. season ending and her heart somewhere between Aspen and Africa, Martina will continue a life filled with excitement, excellence and adventure. •

preview: toska

By Pamela Gibson

Opera of the Hamptons, an East End Treasure, presented Puccini's Tosca outdoors at The Siena Spiritual Center at Villa Maria in Water Mill and it was a glorious experience. If you have only attended opera in an opera house, with a full orchestra and extravagant sets and costumes, you must try Opera of the Hamptons. The stark, bare bones presentation, with minimal set, and only piano accompaniment, places all of the emphasis on the performer, and what wonderful singers and actors they were. The audience of 300 was absolutely enrapt, as the venue allowed a truly up close and intimate experience of Puccini's tragic masterpiece.

Tosca is set just after Napoleon's occupation of Rome, a time of political confusion as French and Austrian troops battle for Rome. Maria Carolina of Austria, Marie Antionette's sister, has assumed the Regency in Rome, as the Pope has died, and she is removing all opposition. Indeed the opening scene is of the nobleman, Angelotti's escape from prison to the Church of Sant'Andrea della Valle. But, unlike many popular operas, Puccini's Tosca, from this point on, becomes more about the psychology of man's humanity or inhumanity than about the historical moment at hand. The heroine, Floria Tosca, performed with soaring intensity by Cristina Fontanelli, is a famous singer and she is in love with a famous painter, Mario Cavaradossi, movingly portrayed by Efren Puig. As opera is tragic by design, the drama is set when the Baron Scarpia, the Chief of the Roman Police, a cruel, evil, opportunistic character enters the scene. He is also interested in possessing Tosca, and uses her naïve, trusting nature to manipulate her and doom them all.

Scarpia is forcefully portrayed by Pedro del Medina, with a suppressed evil, and depth of character that was fascinating to watch, particularly is a small venue, up close. Indeed, Scarpia's cruel inhuman nature and commanding presence on stage, makes Tosca's beautifully sung aria, as she bargains for her lover's life, in the end of the review: alice in wonderland

By Jerry Cimisi

"Am I Alice or somebody else? I was Alice when I woke up this morning. But so much has happened since then."

Thus says a very confused Alice, as she begins to enter the surrealness of Wonderland in the recent Stages production of, yes, Alice in Wonderland, presented at LTV. The new realm the wondering English girl has entered has the atmosphere of Samuel Beckett laced with the Marx Brothers.

"The rule is jam tomorrow, and jam yesterday, but never jam today," the Duchess says. "It's every other day."

Lewis Carroll, the penname for mathematics teacher Charles Dodgson, first published his classic, Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, in 1865. His story of the girl who enters the province of Wonderland when she chases the White Rabbit down a hole was, at the time, both children's story and political satire, with many of the characters representing political figures of the day. But time has transcended the original satire into what might appear timeless fun and nonsense; yet the "nonsense" holds a good deal of wisdom, or, at least, wit.

Alice is the thirty-third production since 1994 of the children's theatre group Stages (they've done Alice twice before). It is one of those rare stories in which children can delight and adults can ponder. The previous generation saw Alice as "a trip": and, indeed, any one of a number of scenes in the show, such as the tea party with the Mad Hatter, the March Hare and the Dormouse – and Alice – has made more than few ponder if Mr. Dodgson had dabbled in psychedelics. In the '60s the Jefferson Airplane's White Rabbit, with Grace Slick's haunting refrain of "Remember what the dormouse said..." made Alice's travails in Wonderland allegory for the flower children's displeasure with the military-industrial complex.

At any rate, of course, Alice has survived Haight Ashbury, even if her accidental pilgrimage recalls it – while jabbing at the notion of time.

Mad Hatter: "We quarrelled last March, time and I..."

The Hatter's inexplicable antics prompt Alice to say: "I think you would do something better with your time than wasting it."

The Hatter comes back with, "If you knew time as well as I do, you wouldn't talk about wasting it."

But the depth of any material is dependent on the skill with which it is presented. Under Helene Leonard's continually consummate direction, the large cast of characters who fill Wonderland with their odd views and ways are capably portrayed.

Rachel Goodale as Alice acts the proper but adventurous young English lady to a T, staying in accent all the while. I especially enjoyed her trying to admonish the denizens of Wonderland in the correct way to behave.

Of course Wonderland has its own rules, or rulelessness. TEmily Chase, as the Queen of Hearts, imperious and filled with her own divine rights to the realm, shouts "Off with his (or her) head!" at anyone who annoys her; but, as Alice is informed, when she mentions that this is not the nicest thing to do, no one's head really ever rolls.

The Queen's ruling mate, the King of Hearts, played by Robert Hartwell, was a monarch resigned to his queen's outbursts, but no less shy of introducing his own nonsense into reality – as evidenced in the trial scene, where what could be called a kangaroo court sets out to affix guilt in the matter of the Queen's pilfered tarts.

Paige Ruiz as the Duchess, had a surprisingly throaty voice for one so young. Whether intent or the result of over using her instrument, this "hoarseness" worked perfectly for the arrogant Duchess, who delineates to Alice the aforementioned Catch-22 about the serving of jam in Wonderland.

Indeed, Alice's new compatriots in this land of seeming nonsense were well performed by numerous actors. Stages veteran Craig Schenck as the Mad Hatter brought to the role his customary je ne sais quoi. After seeing Mr. Schenck in many Stages productions, one can only say comedy is in his blood; let us hope it is in his future.

Andie Arnow's White Rabbit is the sort of sudden, myth-like guide who suddenly rushes Alice into this other world. Carly Lehrman, as the March Hare, adeptly shares the Mad Hatter's "madness" in the tea party where the concept of time is stretched as much as the usual courtesies of etiquette.

Georgia Freed as the Cheshire Cat is playful in her appearance and disappearance. What I would call a complimentary character, the Dormouse, played by Edward Deupner, speaks no words, but the mouse-like noises he makes are worked into a sort of speech.

When Robert Kohnken, as Mock Turtle, first comes on stage it is not very easy to determine just what he is. When one is informed he is a turtle, the response is, Of course. He portrays the earnest plodding of the creature, but a beast in fact jabbed by artistic leanings, evidenced in his insistent rendition of "Mock Turtle Soup."

Throughout Alice's unexpected stay in Wonderland she tries to find the culprit behind the theft of the Queen's tarts. Appropriately, after the mystery is resolved (by Alice astutely recalling the conclusion of a nursery rhyme), our young British lady is returned to her own land, where she might henceforth see the commonplace as replete with its own strangeness.

For those who have never seen a production of Stages, this theatre troupe presents established works in a fresh, creative way. At each production I am always presented with the spectacle of a large number of children of various ages (in this case from eight to seventeen) interweaving their performances into a solid, always interesting show. I've said this before: as an adult, I am as intrigued and as carried along at a Stage's play as much as the children in the audience.

Stages next production, Anything Goes, will be at LTV, on the weekend of August 25-27. Call 631/329-1420 for reservations.

review: jimmy buffet at southampton college

By Janna Cord

Jimmy Buffett and the Coral Reefer Band, who headlined the tenth All For The Sea benefit concert at Southampton College of Long Island University, delighted a crowd of 9000 last night and raised over $1.2 million for marine science scholarships.

The net proceeds broke the mark set at last year's benefit concert by Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers. This year's show also set records for the highest VIP attendance (1500) and Alumni ticket sales (1250). With ten concerts in the past nine years, All For The Sea has raised nearly $5 million.

Buffett's show was the quickest sellout in All For The Sea History. Tickets were unavailable just three and a half weeks after they went on sale. Buffett acknowledged his strong local fan base during the show in his between-songs conversations with the audience. He added references not only to the College but also to the Metro Parrothead Club.

It was Buffett who began a string of consecutive sellouts with his 1996 All For The Sea show. Since then, artists James Taylor, Rod Stewart and Tom Petty have also sold out the annual benefit that aids students in Southampton College of Long Island University's nationally recognized marine and environmental science programs. Jimmy Buffett and the Coral Reefer Band brought back their songs of beachside romance and Margaritaville daydreaming to a capacity crowd last night, playing favorites like "Changes in Latitudes, Changes in Attitudes," "Cheeseburger in Paradise" and, of course, "Margaritaville," along with a cover of "Brown Eyed Girl."

On stage to introduce Buffett was College Chancellor Robert F.X. Sillerman, who co-chaired the benefit with his wife Laura Baudo Sillerman. In May, the Sillermans announced that they were donating $15 million through their Tomorrow Foundation for scholarships and a library renovation. In that same spirit, Buffett said that he was donating his concert fee back to the College, as he had also done in 1996.

"All For The Sea has become a Hamptons tradition that's more popular each year," said Provost Tim Bishop. "But it couldn't be done without the dedicated help of College and community volunteers. We are very thankful to them for making this year's show an overwhelming success."

Previous performers were Crosby, Stills & Nash (1992), Tina Turner (1993), Foreigner and the Doobie Brothers (1994), Tony Bennett (1995), the Allman Brothers (1996), Buffett (1996), James Taylor (1997), Rod Stewart (1998) and Petty (1999).

The marine and environmental sciences programs at Southampton College are nationally acclaimed for their excellence and have produced thirty two Fulbright Scholars in the past twenty five years, according to Darren Johnson, Assistant Director of Public Relations at Southampton College of Long Island University.

ELEPHANT RIDES & CLOWN FACE PAINTING ON THE MIDWAY 1 HR. BEFORE SHOWTIME

second act, a towering moment, that brought many in the audience to tears. This followed by experiencing Scarpia's murder at Tosca's hands as the second act ends, froze the already emotional audience in their seats. I, for one, had to walk across the lovely Villa Maria lawn, during the intermission, just to compose myself.

Act three, then continues with some of Puccini's most recognizable music, it weaves the psychology of the tragedy with the intimacy and detail of fine lace. It feels like a dark spider is enveloping the doomed lovers as the audience realizes that Mario will die, but Tosca still believes that a happy ending is at hand. The final lover's duet, Mario's death on stage by firing squad, and Tosca's dramatic discovery of his lifeless body was riveting. I can't remember feeling that involved in the moment in a large ornate opera house environment. I wanted to yell out, a warning to Tosca, that this could only end in tragedy, and she was too trusting. Then, Tosca leapt to her death from a parapet of the Castel Sant'Angelo, and we all exhaled and drank in the tragic karma.

I absolutely have to mention that Barbara Giancola, the Artistic Director and founder of Opera of the Hamptons, is the gleaming light behind this performance. She stands on stage before each act and details the plot that will unfold in the coming act. It is as though each person in the audience were sitting in her living room as she recounts a true tale complete with real people. Barbara is a unique artistic story teller, a real Scheherazade.

This is Tosca's one hundredth year in production, and Opera of the Hamptons certainly presented this gem in all of its glory. The renowned international cast; soprano Christina Fontanelli as Tosca, Tenor Efrén Puig as Mario Cavaradossi, Baritone Pedro del Medina as Baron Scarpia, with Bass-baritone Steven Fredricks as Angelotti, Baritone Charles Bosselman as Sacristan and Sciarrone, Baritone Jason Livanis as Spoletta, and east enders Jeffrey Ott as Roberti, and Rachel Goodale as the Shephard Boy, were magnificent and with stage direction by Franco Gentilesca, and music direction by Atarah Hazzan the evening was a triumph.

The venue, the Siena Spirituality Center in Water Mill, under the keen direction of Dick Lawless, overlooking Mecox Bay, is one of the most beautiful sites in the Hamptons, and open to the public through out the year with a variety of events and programs dedicated to enhancing the spirit of man. Next summer, the Villa Maria at the Siena Spirituality Center will be the site of a designer showcase, and having walked through the mansion rooms, it is sure to be a stunning event. You can contact the center, a sponsored ministry of the Amityville Dominican Sisters, at (631) 726-4740 for a schedule of the coming, very busy, schedule of events. The Opera of the Hamptons can be reached by voice mail or fax at (631) 728-8804.

The Sheltered Islander

OBSERVATIONS OF AN ISLANDER #117 NO GREATER LOVE

Many people think that getting a big chunk of old carbon, like a ten carat diamond, means love. Some think building little things like the Taj Mahal, means love. Some even think donating one measly essential organ, like a kidney means love. Hah! I say all of these pale in comparison to the highest expression of love on Shelter Island.

It is an act of extraordinary commitment. To perform this act validates beyond the shadow of a doubt that you truly love this person. You know when you say "yes" that you will suffer for hours. Once committed to the road you have chosen, you cannot turn back. No matter what road blocks pop up, no matter how many detours, you must see it through. A road so fraught with anxiety and pain it makes you crazy enough to want to shoot somebody!

By now I know you've guessed it... the greatest expression of love on Shelter Island is taking someone to JFK. If it were any more painful, you'd need nitrous oxide. You only do it for love.

First you get asked, and like a fool you agree and almost immediately regret it. As the deadline draws nigh you try to think of acceptable reasons to get out of it. Reasons like, "I can't go, I think I've got a 24 hour brain cancer." Or: "I just can't make it, my whole family has come down with explosive diarrhea." or "One of the ferries broke down and they need me to ferry passengers over in my clamboat on that day."

Once you've committed to take a lover or relative to JFK, the only excuse acceptable is death, and it had better be your own. Even then it's a hard sell. No, no, no, once someone has secured a ride to JFK they hang on to it like O.J. to his story.

The ride in doesn't really start getting bad until you hit Greenport or Sag Harbor. From there you have to find a variety of highways through thickening traffic until you're too thick you could threaten.

Finally, like a beacon through the darkness, like a cheesecake at a supermodels' convention, like a year round rental on Shelter Island, there it is... the Holy Grail, the sign to JFK. You breathe easier, you fool, thinking you're almost there. You mistakenly assume that physical proximity has anything to do with getting to your goal. It's like Sir Edmund Hillary standing at the base of Mount Everest and saying, "Okay kids, we're just about there..."

JFK is under construction. It was under construction the first time I saw it in 1972 and it's still under construction. The concrete dividers and orange cones direct you in all ways other than what is marked on the road. Confusion, chaos and cursing are survival skills.

To ease the severe parking problem, they have built a six story high parking lot I call the Tower of Terror. They positioned it one mile closer to the terminals than say, North Carolina. Once inside, absolutely nobody knows where the hell they're going and it's not their fault. It's a labyrinth with poorly marked directions to and from hell. Once parked you will search for the elevator, you pass starving people who have been searching for the elevator for days.

Vice President Al Gore, a leading conservationist and proponent of pure water, will get his first close-up look at Southampton's Lake Agawam on Sunday, August 6, when he has lunch at the exquisite lake-front home of Democratic Convention delegate, Barbaralee Diamonstein and Carl Spielvogel. The occasion, less than a week before the start of the Democratic Convention in Los Angeles, is for thirty persons. It will provide an opportunity for private and candid conversation with the Democratic Presidential nominee. Lunch will be prepared by Master Chef Daniel Boulud at $5,000 per person.

The Yurman-Vered event, for ARF, at the Vered Gallery in East Hampton features the David Yurman collection of limited edition Cable dog and cat collars, leashes and jewelry. The preview party on August 5, 9-11 p.m. will be held at the Vered Gallery in East Hampton. The exhibition of David Yurman jewels and impressive paintings, continues at the Gallery through Saturday, August 19, when the jewels will move to the Southampton waterfront estate of Ellen and Chuck Scarbrough for the "Bow Wow Luau" auction and authentic luau prepared by Hawaiian celebrity chef Sam Choy in partnership with the Hampton's own celebrity chef, Starr Boggs.

Eventually you will find elevators, full of dry bleached bones from other passengers who couldn't get out either. You might make it to the shuttle bus stop in front of the Tower of Terror. JFK has a shuttle from the Tower to the terminal, every day, on the day, to the wrong terminal of your choice.

Well, welcome to New York. If you don't have a New York attitude before you got to JFK, you will by the time you leave. I think JFK is actually The New York College of Fungu, where New Yorkers can obtain a degree in What's It To Ya Buddy? The airport is just a cover up.

Finally you get your passengers to or from the gate. You tear one of the rental carts loose from its steel brackets and throw the luggage on. You turn into Tony Soprano. If your passengers try to hug you hello or goodbye, you shove them back and say, "Let's just get to the car."

Once you have taken the shuttle back to the Tower of Terror, you must find your vehicle. They could have marked the floors and grids, but then you'd find your car right away and they'd lose the chance to charge you for an extra hour of parking fees.

We finally found our car by facing Mecca and pledging ourselves to be on stand-by if a Jihad is ever announced against JFK airport. Once in the car, a false sense of security takes over. You think you can take the spiral ramp down... but no....some spiral ramps go up, some go down. Why? Because the entire airport is now a CF (military term, CF = Cluster and you can figure out the rest..) You must drive around aimlessly to find a down ramp. At the bottom is a parking attendant from India who only has one english phrase "Goh to de right, sir." He takes your money and points to the wrong exit from the lot.

As you approach New Jersey with a plan to turn around at Cape May, you remember that you did this for love. Was it worth it? No. Nothing was worth this. If they loved YOU, they wouldn't have put you through this. Next time they can hire a limo.

people to do what they want and not to do what they're told because the morals and mores of the times are going to change. And if you make a decision based upon what is acceptable and what you are told to want at the time, then years later values change and you will feel threatened by the fact that things are different. All the people I went to school with are divorced now. They got married because you had to get married by the time you got out of college; you had to be engaged or else you'd never get anybody! You know; the good ones would be taken. And then years later you ask, "why did I marry him? You have nothing in common with him."

"Or any choice you make, like choosing a certain job. When I was out of college everybody wanted to be in advertising, like Gregory Peck in The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit. And then later, girls all went to Law School in the seventies, and now everybody is into the dot com thing to make the money. Which is fine, but what if you don't like it? Particularly in relationships it's important not to be influenced by what other people think is important."

In Rona Jaffe's latest book, The Road Taken, she tells the story of five generations of a typical American family. She shows us how they evolve from the turn of the century to the present day. Jaffe is interested in the role that both disease and medicine play in the twentieth century. What were the plagues of each generation? Whether it was septicemia, the influenza virus, polio or

A.I.D.S., they affected the lives and the psyches of each family member, the losses reverberating through time touching family members, and determining their future life choices.

Jaffe did a great deal of research for her latest book, and asserts that she doesn't know any of the characters, that they were not based on any people she knew in real life, but rather that they revealed themselves to her as she wrote. She doesn't claim to have any favorite characters in The Road Taken, like a good mother they are all her favorites. Come and meet them and their creator.

Rona Jaffe will be at Guild Hall, on Sunday at 2 p.m. talking about her latest and most fascinating book, The Road Taken.

Dating is a funny game. I've heard lots of men and women alike saying, "there are no men (or women) out there!" This is not my experience. I could go out with a different man every night. It may be that I'm not looking for the same thing that some people are. For one I'm not looking for commitment. I used to want someone to protect me but I've learned that I had best protect myself. I don't have my eyes in everyone's pocketbook. I don't want somebody to come and solve all my problems. I simply want companionship, good conversation and if possible, a little humor thrown in.

Last week I had a wonderful date. I had met a young man through a friend. He is handsome and creative, loves to kayak, likes to cook and is basically adorable. We had a few phone conversations and made plans to get together on my day off. We spoke in the morning to make plans for how and where to meet. He was willing to cook and invited me to his house. I wanted to go into the office for a while so I suggested that he meet me in Bridgehampton. I had been fishing the day before so I made us lunch. Before he arrived I asked if he was single. He is. I told him I think he's adorable. We had a long conversation on the phone. I liked what he had to say about friendship. He has a spiritual side. He loves to fish. Kayaking is high on my list of a great way to spend spare time. He likes to exercise. I couldn't believe my good fortune. I have met a new friend with almost all of my favorite attributes. It seemed too good to be true.

My new friend arrived around noon. We got to talk in person. I still like his looks and his smile. I finally asked the right questions. I said I was amazed he didn't have women all over him. He said he does have women chasing him. So, why is he single? Well, for one thing, he just moved back here. The other reason is more important.

He's gay!

Our first date went like a dream. We had lunch. We took the garbage to the dump. I had been waiting for someone to come around with a pickup truck. We went to work and packed a few things for shipping. We went out kayaking for an hour. We ended up back at my house and cooked dinner together. We had a bottle of champagne. The date lasted ten hours. We both had a great time. We made plans to get together again.

I have now worked and played with my new friend. I'm still impressed with his sweetness and capacity for fun. I have a great new friend and good escort. I end up with a bit of advice. Don't look for all your dreams and desires to be met by one person. It is fine to date someone who fills some of your needs some of the time. I will not marry my new friend. We will not make babies together. Still, I enjoy his company and feel happy to have this great new person in my life. It is better to focus on the good parts and stop complaining about what you don't get. All the rest will fall into place on it's own. Have a great week!

Artists Against Abuse Annual Plate Auction

The annual "Artists Against Abuse Plate Auction" brought out a very attractive crowd on Saturday night. Over 100 plates painted by artists and celebrities alike were sold in this one-night event at Channing Daughters Winery. The benefit is to support the Retreat, a shelter for domestic violence victims. This year was the first year that a catalog of the plates was made available. I'm proud to have had a plate in every auction and to support this important event.

Ray Charles Performs At Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center

A sold out audience thrilled to the super performance of Ray Charles at the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center on Sunday, July 9. Nostalgia prevailed as Ray sang such familiar songs as "Georgia" and "Give Me a Kiss to Build a Dream On" and rocked to the rhythms of the Ray Charles Orchestra and the Raelettes.

Sunflower Festival

Henry Buhl has the disposition and smile of a sunflower. Maybe that's why it's his signature. His annual Sunflower Festival was held at his home in Southampton, with more sunflowers than all of FTD. Even human ones. The cause which Mr. Buhl energetically supports is the Soho and TriBeCa Partnership, which among other things, provides employment readiness training and job placement for recovering homeless individuals. The crowd was heavy on artists and patrons of the arts and the conversation was polite and quite Southampton. After dinner, the mood would heighten as numerous single men and women were to be auctioned off. No, human trading has not returned to our civilized society, just dates with the eligibles.

Polo Week Two

The second Saturday of Polo was overcast but dry, though it followed some days of heavy rain and while the players tried to get going, the wet grass made it dangerous for both polo horses and players. You would think that such a rainout would send the tent patrons home to indulge in other entertainment. No, the tent party just went on, and I'd bet that more than half didn't even realize that the match was cancelled. Maybe they found it strange that some of the players were walking around the tent in full polo gear. Perhaps the ball went into the tent and they dismounted to look for it. Summer Saturdays are polo days regardless. After all, those big hats and $700 designer jeans can't just hang out in the closet. Dolce and Gabbana sponsored the event and that brought out a larger contingent of fashionistas than usual.

Come Fly With Us

This week is Kite Week. A week to fly. The one week of the year where kites are celebrated and recognized for their uniqueness. A week that culminates in Dan's Papers Annual Kite Fly - Sunday August 6th at 5 p.m. on Sagg Main Beach. Next week you can store your kites away until next summer. But this Sunday bring a kite and fly with us.

Kites have had a long, glorious, and rich history, here, on the East End of Long Island. As we move into the new millennium it is an important time to remember this history. The Pilgrims who settled in our area in the mid-1600's, quickly took upon kites as a mode of transportation. The Pilgrims would take flight on the kites, and use them to travel over Mecox Bay. Unfortunately, it was very difficult to control the direction of the kites and many people landed in the bay, instead of on the other side of it.

Later, kites were used as a means of long distance communication. Red kites would warn others of trouble, while green ones would be signals for friendly trade.

In the early 1800's, Dan Franklin, a distant relative of Ben, and a resident of Sagaponack, began selling kites for the purpose of conducting electricity. In fact, the first Kite Fly took place in the midst of a thunder and lightning storm. That year, the winner was the last man left standing. Because of the great number of casualties in that contest, the Kite Fly was suspended until Dan's Papers reinstated it twenty-eight years ago, with some slight rule changes, of course.

The evolution of kite flying, however, has now reached its pinnacle, with Dan's Papers 28th Annual Kite Fly. The event will, of course, feature kites, but will also include live music from The Island Boys and Grindle Entertainment, caricaturists, body artists, and more! Prizes will be awarded in the following twenty-five categories: Best Millennium Kite, the Most Newsworthy Kite, the Most Beautiful Kite, the Ugliest Kite, the Tiniest Kite, the Most Exotic Kite, the Highest Flying Kite, the Lowest Flying Kite, the Oldest Kite, the Youngest Kite, the Kite Made of the Most Material, the Kite Made of the Most Natural Materials, the Most Colorful Kite, the Most Destructive Kite, the Funkiest

Kite, the Funniest Kite, the Longest Tailed Kite, the Most Futuristic Kite, the Most Graceful Kite, the Best Homemade Kite, the Most Nautical Kite, the Best Junior Kroll Kite, the Most Geometrical Kite, the Scariest Kite, and the Kite in Best Costume. Every category has great prizes from a variety of places. Kites of the Harbor and Penny Whistle are awarding kites. Other prizes will be awarded by the Sagg Main General Store, Poxabogue Golf Course, Montauk Movie, Long Island Game Farm, and a spectacular prize from Gurney's Inn for the Best Millennium Kite.

The judges for the Kite Fly are also very special, and will feature some of the biggest political names around. This August 6th, Al and George will be voting for you! Rick will also be there as a judge, and we are hoping to have the Clintons attend as judges as well.

With all these attractions how could you possibly resist? Become part of Kite Fly history. Win a prize and become a legend. Or come as a spectator and watch it all unfold. So, come to Sagg Main Beach on August 6th, and get ready to start fly'n high! -Dan Sirkin

A Day Full Of Follies At Hayground

I had the pleasure of attending the Hayground Follies last Thursday morning. The follies were held in the gymnasium of the Hayground camp grounds. When I arrived children were running around, parents were getting their cameras ready and popcorn was being handed around. It was obviously a very important day in the lives of the campers, counselors, and parents.

The children, ranging in age from three up to thirteen, had been practicing hard for months. Most of the show was choreographed by Shannon Hurley, a teacher from Massachusetts. This is Shannon's first year at the camp.

Other veterans however also participated in the events. Brian von Hof who has been at the camp since it opened in 1996 years acted as the DJ spinning all of the tunes that the kids picked out to perform to. Doug Weitz, a veteran for four years came out between each act and had the crowd in stitches with his witty sense of humor.

The show consisted of lip-synching, gymnastics, jokes, dancing and outrageous talent. The Sea Robins did a wonderful job dancing to the tune of "Chicka Chicka Boom Boom." The children were all dressed in white and each had a letter from the alphabet painted on their shirts. Some of the most impressive were the kids who went out there all alone and showed nerves of steel. Alexandra did a wonderful rendition of "Shake Your Bon Bon" by Ricky Martin. Every time the song title was sung she turned her Bon Bon to the audience and did some shaking of her own. Connor sung and danced to "Living La Vida Loca" and melted the hearts of the young ladies watching. The performer who won most memorized was Nick with his performance of Allstar, he knew every line and never skipped a beat. Isabella, Reya, Layla and Darrin sung Mr. Big Stuff and the audience clapped along. Aside from music there was also Jake the joke man who came out periodically to tell a few jokes while Chris stood on his head. It truly looked like the beginning of a comedic career in the works. Some dialogues were also performed from Shakespeare's play Romeo and Juliet. Emily and Chelsea played Juliet in the speech about Juliet's nurse. Nell and Effie acted out the scene with Juliet and the nurse, and the boys Malcolm, Ben, Charlie, Tobias and Brandon performed the bite your thumb scene.

The D.K. rap was done by Geoffrey, Ryan and Gregory and it was most impressive because they wrote it themselves. Between some of the acts a couple of the girls came out and showed off their incredible gymnastics skills. They looked like they were flying through the air doing flips and jumps. Ian and Christian were awesome doing "The Box" a dance that included the best moonwalk that I've ever seen. It was a great show. Everyone did a wonderful job and their hours of hard work were evident.

The Hayground School is located in Bridgehampton on Mitchells Lane. There are about 250 kids at the camp this year. It was founded in 1996 by local parents and educators. The children are from all walks of life. The camp is privately financed and some of the students receive some sort of tuition assistance. For more information or any questions concerning the camp call (631) 537-7068.

YOUR GUIDE TO EAST END WINERIES AND VINEYARDS

Wines By Morrell

Possibly one of the most attractive wine shops in the country is presently in East Hampton. Located at 74 Montauk Highway in the Red Horse Shopping Mall, the shop features an extensive collection of representative wines and spirits from around the world including a large number of cold sakes, the finest wines from Long Island, summer roses, and a knowledgeable staff focused on service. The shop also features a climate controlled wine vault (Old & Rare Room), antique wine posters, wine antiques on consignment and a wine tasting area highlighted by a seven foot diameter tunneau or wine barrel built in Paris in 1850.

Various old wine and liquor bottles adorn the interior and one can find old maderas from the late 1800's as well as large casks of whisky from 1865 still in their original wooden enclosures.

Starting on Memorial Day Weekend and continuing each week on Saturdays from 4-7 p.m., the store will conduct wine tastings with various vineyards and producers featuring their best wines. In addition to the complementary wine, each presenter will share details about the wine, how it was made and how it should be served. An extensive collection of wines and spirits and friendly service make Wines By Morrell an exciting and unique shop to drop by and surround yourself in wine memorabilia and good conversation. So come on by and sit around the outdoor water fountain while sipping a cool glass of whatever suits your fancy.

Gristina Vineyards, one of the old guard architects of Long Island wines' surge to national prominence, has been sold. Its new owner inherits a healthy roster of recognized wines as well as a staff acclaimed for its prowess in the vineyard and sensitivity in the tasting room. p. 72.

It hasn't quite been "the World Goes to Wading River," but this sleepy North Shore village has enjoyed an infusion of attention from the restaurant-sampling public due to a seaside gem called La Plage. Creative dishes, symbiotic wines and lovely views characterize this sophisticated dining experience. p. 74.

The North Fork's wineries are gradually changing hands as yesterday's pioneers give way to – and collect handsomely from – today's broad-shouldered industrial visionaries. Paul and Ursula Lowerre rode in from California on the now-cresting wave of investment fever. Their Peconic Bay Winery is making a splash with its consumer friendly wines. p. 75.

The Osprey's Dominion winery, in truth, provides little habitat for the lovely North Fork sea birds. Its wines have, however, exhibited the enchanting grace for which their namesake birds are renowned. Ever since its winemaker and vineyard manager migrated from California, Osprey's reputation has begun to soar. p. 77.

Poised on the serene waters of Mattituck Inlet, Touch of Venice restaurant provides a relaxing setting for one of the island's best unsung restaurants. Afternoon Tea on the North Fork? The Greenport Tea Room is happy to oblige. A bit of an anomaly in this sometimes rough-and-tumble nautical town, the restaurant is filled with quaint charms, derived from the owners' travels throughout Europe. p. 79.

Gristina Vineyards Prepares to Enter its Next Phase

By Roy Bradbrook

Although passion may be a word not often associated with industry, it seems to be very appropriate when talking about Gristina Vineyards. Dr. Jerome (Jerry) Gristina has a passion for wine that induced him to buy land on the North Fork in Cutchogue back in the early 80's. He then planted, by hand, many of the first vines in 1984, when the first 30 acres of the total 87 acres of his property were planted. Last week his efforts resulted in the latest episode in the ongoing series of can-you-top-this purchase prices for North Fork wineries (see accompanying article.)

A busy doctor with two practices and living in Wilton Connecticut, he became an indefatigable salesman for his wines. John Perry, the General Manager for Gristina told me, with a chuckle, how, on many occasions, he would call Jerry Gristina at his medical office, only to find that he had taken his lunch break in order to display the qualities of his wines to a local restaurant or wine store.

You don't have to talk very long with John Perry before you realize that he too is a passionate advocate of Gristina's quality products. John came to Gristina from running a very high quality restaurant, Promis, in Westport, Connecticut, which he had helped turn around to success in a short space of time. "This, I suppose, is my forte," he explained. "When Jerry Gristina offered me the chance to come here it was a challenge which I readily accepted, especially as I no longer have to commute from East Quogue to Westport each day!"

When John Perry came to Gristina two years ago, he found that there were several key areas which badly needed remedial attention. "We did not have a good reputation for being friendly, sociable or hospitable and this greatly concerned us." Now John is a Greek American with a very strong sense of pride in his Greek heritage and as many of you will know, Greeks have a very well deserved reputation for hospitality, so this had to be corrected quickly.

Gristina also decided to change their sales and distribution organization and instead of using outside companies to do this they now have this very important aspect of their business firmly under their own direct control. Apart from the sterling efforts of Dr. Jerry, John Perry spends a lot of time selling Gristina's wines to outlets from Manhattan up to Albany.

Operating a winery and producing quality wine cannot be done by any one or two people and John Perry was full of praise for Adam Suprenant the winemaker at Gristina and his colleague, Rob Hansult, the vineyard manager. Adam has very impressive credentials. A native New Yorker, he holds degrees from Cornell in viticulture

Sunny days are far from over at Gristina Vineyards with new ownership. John Perry Gristina's General and from UC Davis in oenology. After qualifying he worked as assistant winemaker at Franciscan for two years and then spent time at Chateau Margaux and Chateau Lafite-Rothschild. He joined Gristina in the spring of '98 as winemaker and "baby sat" the '97 Reds which were in barrel at that time and which had been made by the previous winemaker, Charles Flatt.

Already, under Suprenant's care, Gristina was awarded a double gold at the prestigious Eastern Wine Competition and a silver in San Francisco for their '99 Rose which was made entirely from cabernet sauvignon. "This was a very good result for us. In San Francisco we beat many famous names, including Simi," John said with obvious pride. This emotion also came through very strongly when he talked about the changes that Rob Hansult is bringing about in the care and development of the Gristina vineyards. "Rob has over 20 years of experience in vineyard management on Long Island with a number of the top producers and in the eight months that he has been at Gristina he has significantly improved our vineyards to levels never before seen here. Improvements in our pruning and irrigation techniques and the general care and attention makes us very positive about our future as a high quality wine producer." John went on, "Teamwork is so important in a winery and I am delighted by the way that all the members of our team have reacted to the challenges we have given them."

Success can bring its own peculiar problems and John Perry acknowledges that they will have some difficulty in meeting the expected levels of demand this year. "Last year our sales volume doubled and so far, this year we are running about 30% above last year. It really looks as though, whatever we do, we will run out of some of our most popular wines before the end of the season."

One of the wines which probably will be in this category is the '98 Pinot Noir. They only have one acre of the pinot noir planted and with a yield which at best is around 3/4 of a ton an acre it is easy to see why they could only produce less than 100 cases of this full bodied, spicy, fruity wine. Pinot noir, produced from the classic Burgundian grape, for many wine drinkers represents the peak of quality for red wines and may be drunk on its own or as an accompaniment to dishes such as boeuf bourguignon, venison, duck or steak. The Gristina Pinot Noir, while still available, sells for just under $30.

If you are looking for a more modest but eminently drinkable wine, then Gristina's new release of Garnet, which is a non vintage Bordeaux style blend of merlot, cabernet sauvignon and cabernet franc selling for just under $10. Garnet aptly describes the wine's color and it is medium dry, soft and with a touch of fruit which makes it a great party wine or for casual drinking with such food as pasta or pizza.

Of the whites, Gristina has a '98 Chardonnay at just under $13 which is very crisp without any overbearing oakiness and shows aromas of oranges and other fruits which makes this a very apt match to the Garnet for everyday or party drinking. For more special occasions the famous '97 Andy's Field Chardonnay which has taken many awards and sells for $22 is recommended. This wine is produced from grapes solely from one small field on the estate which always produces the ripest fruit. The wine was aged 'sur lies' for eight months, that is, it was allowed to lie in oak barrels on its lees, which are the finished yeast cells produced during the fermentation process. This technique is used to develop even more taste and breadth of flavors in the finished wine and certainly this wine proves the value of doing this as it is creamy with a good balance of oak and fruit and has a long finish.

John Perry went on to talk some more about the tasting room. "We love people to come and taste. We have complimentary tasting of six of our standard wines and then if you want to taste some of the limited production wines we offer them at $2 for all four of these. Visitors are really encouraged to try all of the wines, if only for educational purposes."

As the Gristinas bow out, turning their labor of love over to Westhampton entrepreneur Vincent Galluccio, Perry paid homage to the former owners. "Jerry and Mary Gail have been instrumental in preserving the beauty of this part of the world and also of offering economic benefits to the local community while making wines which have brought the Gristina name to the forefront of the industry."

When you leave the beautiful vineyards of Gristina and John Perry and his friendly, expert team you leave with little doubt that the winery epitomizes the best that this rapidly maturing Long Island industry has to offer.

Gristina Sold For A Record Breaking $5.5 Million

Just before we went to press with this issue, it was announced that Vincent Galluccio of Westhampton Beach had agreed to purchase the Gristina Vineyards business for $5.5 million, which is a new record for a Long Island winery, topping the $5 million paid for Bedell Cellars by Michael Lynne earlier this year.

I managed to talk briefly to John Perry, the General Manager of Gristina regarding these developments. "Jerry and Mary Gail Gristina have done a wonderful job here in a relatively short time span and are marvelous people to work for but now Vincent Galluccio is poised to take us to the next level of success and far beyond. Vincent is a very passionate person with incredible vision and business knowledge who is bringing major resources into this business. All of us at Gristina are really looking forward to being part of the exciting future."

Vincent Galluccio has already indicated that his future plans include the investment of some $10 million to expand all aspects of the winery from vineyard management to marketing. When asked about the naming of the operation, John Perry commented, "There are no immediate plans for change. The Gristina name and label will continue for the indefinite future. It has become a name associated with high quality wines as the sale of the vineyard for a record price shows."

The sale of Gristina Vineyards is yet another major forward step for the Long Island wine industry. The early pioneers such as the Gristina family probably never dreamed as they planted their first fields with vines that the day would come when multi million dollar investments, such as Vincent Galluccio's, in the purchase and development of the wineries would become an integral part of the winery business here.

We don't have to tell you how good our wine is.

The Wine Spectator did it for us.

At Bedell Cellars, our intuition told us that our '95 Cupola might be one of the most distinguished wines ever produced on the North Fork. This is why we were so pleased when recently the respected Wine Spectator magazine bestowed a score of 90 on this very special wine. A score that is more than a triumph for the skills of our estimable winemaker, Kip Bedell. It is a triumph for Long Island's North Fork, helping to affirm its place among the renown wine producing regions of the world. The '95 Bedell Cellars Cupola, a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, and Merlot, clearly impressed the experts. Which leads us to another prediction. The future holds great promise for us at Bedell. It is just the beginning.

The North Fork comes of age

THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE

It is unlikely that the sleepy hamlet of Wading River nestling on the north shore overlooking Long Island Sound has ever been famous - apart at one time from its proximity to the ill fated Shoreham nuclear power station. As a result it probably has been one of the lesser known areas of this part of the world even to inveterate travelers around Long Island. This anonymity has been changing in recent years since a small local restaurant was bought by a couple of entrepreneurial, businessmen who saw a niche for a really high quality restaurant in this area. This is how La Plage came into existence some years ago. Since then, Wayne Wadington has bought out his other partner and is now, with his wife, Erin, the proprietor of this restaurant which, in validation of its name really is situated almost on the beach.

Now, Wayne did not attend formal culinary training and he explained to me how he first became interested in this profession, "I went to C.W.Post as a finance major and went on to almost finish my MBA. As part of supporting myself during the college years I worked in many capacities in restaurants. I must say though, that at this stage I was still much more of an enthusiastic diner than a chef! I realized, as I went through college, that I really wanted to work for myself and this led to us becoming involved in this venture. At first, I worked the front of the house and we brought in a top class chef from Manhattan. As time went on I learned cooking skills from him and I went on to take over the kitchen. The first night I was faced with producing sixty meals on a Saturday night was pretty daunting but we survived."

Survival is a modest statement of what has transpired at La Plage. This year a totally new outdoor bar and a separate water view dining area have been added and the restaurant now seats around sixty-five people. On a recent Saturday night they served 168 meals. Today Wayne has two sous chefs and two salad and dessert preparers.

Erin Wadington runs the front of the house. "Like Wayne, I worked in restaurants as I went through college at Stony Brook," she said. "I find this a very interesting and demanding job. We have so many loyal customers who come from all over the place. Nowadays it is essential to make a reservation on the weekends in particular. We also have been delighted with the way business has held up out of the summer season. Even in winter when it is snowing, customers come down the hills with their four wheel drive vehicles to eat here. We do close for two weeks in January but apart from then we are open for business."

Wayne and Erin are very complementary in their visionary approach to the restaurant business but Wayne is quick to give credit to Erin for the way that their recent expansion was envisaged.

I asked Wayne how he would define his type of cooking. "The most important factor to me is the paramount need for the freshest ingredients we can obtain. I spend almost a disproportionate time researching this and building links, particularly with local suppliers." When we met him he was particularly enthusiastic about the results of his latest web-surfing "I managed to find a supplier of farm raised abalone in California and I have placed an order which will be air freighted to us next week and I am really looking forward to some creative cooking with it." Going back to the question of style, "I aim to keep dishes and sauces light and I do not deliberately set out to produce fusion recipes. My main aim is to ensure that there is a total blend of all of the flavors of the ingredients. If you have to categorize us I suppose American cooking using French techniques is the best one. Our menu varies and we always have daily specials and we do offer some heavier dishes in the winter."

I had asked Wayne to let us try a selection of his menu to get the best appreciation of his cooking. A sense of what was in store for us came with the Amuse he sent out to us. Chilled lobster soup garnished with roe was exceptionally flavorful and the texture was smooth and velvety. The side offering of a taste of a warm mango salad perfectly complemented the soup and we felt ready to explore the treats that undoubtedly lay ahead.

One of the favorite dishes at La Plage is the salad of tart apple, blue cheese, walnuts and mache, with a sesame sherry vinaigrette dressing and we all agreed that this gently cleansed our palates and was a pleasant change from the standard salads found in so many restaurants. Following this came some rare yellow fin tuna served with home made potato chips bonded with caviar and avocado. The tuna was extremely fresh and delicate and the accompaniments made this a dish to linger over to savor the tastes to the full.

The next dish proved to be my particular favorite of the evening. Caramelized jumbo sea scallops served with a snow crab fritter, pea sprouts, wilted arugula and accompanied with a pea-coconut broth was both highly imaginative in conception and impeccably executed to produce a dish where contrasting delicate flavors and textures worked together in true synergy to produce a classic result.

We then moved on to taste squab and lobster served with mushrooms and a squab reduction sauce. Now this could be construed as a sophisticated version of surf and turf and all of the ingredients on their own were first class, with great taste and texture but this was a presentation which did not seem to fully attain the success of the other dishes possibly because the intensity of the squab and the sauce tended to overcome the delicacy of the lobster.

After a suitable pause for reflection and conversation,

Paul Lowerre of Peconic Bay, The First of the Next Wave

By Mary Foster

It was a sunny, warm July weekday, very typical for the North Fork this time of year, and I stopped by Peconic Bay Vineyards to make arrangements to interview owners Paul and Ursula Lowerre.

You can easily find the winery building, a "Dutch" barn, painted white, with nautical blue (Peconic Bay blue?) shutters and matching canvas awning stretching over a deck. The deck, spotted with cafe tables and chairs, faces west, overlooking trim vineyards, at each row's eastern end, a blooming white rose. Some chardonnay plantings, perhaps?

MF: With your purchase of Peconic Bay Winery and 200 acres of vineyards a year and a half ago, you became an owner of one of the largest wineries, with some of the oldest vineyards on the North Fork, and you could really be said to be "the first of the 'new buyers.'" What inspired you to want to become a vineyard and winery owner here on the North Fork? Can you tell us a little about when you first heard about the Long Island wine region?

PL: It goes back to your question of when we first learned about Long Island. It was about ten years ago and we were in California. It was our 10th anniversary, and we were visiting our good friend Dirk Hanson, who is the winemaker at Far Niente, which means 'without a care'. If you've not been, you should go. It's one of the loveliest estates there. In the hotel my wife picked up the Wine Spectator, I believe, which had an article about this "nascent wine industry" developing on the east coast, on the North Fork of Long Island.

MF: I do remember that article.

PL: Ursula, my wife, said 'we should do something about this... Well at that time, we kind of shelved the idea. I came out to the North Fork to play golf, with, as it turns out, the fellow who is now my general manager, Matt Gilles. And I was struck by the contrast to the South Fork, by the rural quality of the place, how beautiful, vineyards everywhere. Then, about the same time, we started looking for some land as an investment. A colleague at Paine Webber suggested I look at the North Fork and talk to Matt Gilles. So I did, and we made our first purchase on Oregon Road [in Cutchogue], about 20 acres. And we were so amused at the headlines calling us the "mystery buyer."

MF: Yes I remember that... Was that land planted in grapevines at the time?

PL: No, it was just corn running right up to the bluff. I was very excited about that, and Matt just brilliantly engineered the assembly of four pieces... So that was the initial purchase, and we started planting right away. We thought it would be a good spot for merlot. We started planting the first 10 acres in merlot, and then, the next year, the next 10 acres in merlot. And the vineyard is just beautiful.

A winery, its vineyards and a bay – Peconic

MF: All merlot?

PL: Yes, all merlot. And then I said to Matt, 'what now?' And he said 'we wait eight years for the fruit to be good enough to make a great wine.' Then we got into talks with Ray Blum, owner of Peconic Bay Winery, and we decided to buy that winery and its twenty acres of vineyards. And we bought another piece on Richmond Creek [in Peconic]. I think that was the first piece we bought, a twenty-four acre piece of an open plantable field and woodland on the creek.

MF: Have you planted that?

PL: No that's not planted. But the twenty or so acres of Peconic Bay... that's mostly chardonnay. Actually the largest planting is Riesling. And now we are blessed with some twenty year old riesling grapes, which produce some excellent riesling... It's fantastic. My favorite wine. We also have some very nice chardonnay, cabernet franc, cabernet sauvignon, a little bit of older merlot, and the new merlot – which is now about three years old.

MF: So you're joining in with some other vineyard owners who are concentrating on merlot and red wine.

PL: Yes. We feel that while a lot of varieties grow well on Long Island, merlot expresses itself particularly well. And now we have some additional plantings of merlot, to bottle alone, as a sole varietal, or to produce a Bordeaux blend.

MF: But you're, what, four years away?

PL: Well, last year we experimented with a rose of merlot. I thought it was very successful, with three year old vines. Obviously you can't make a deep wine with such young vines, but we pressed it, and let it sit 'for a second' on the skin, and I thought it made a beautiful merlot, which Howard Goldberg wrote up a few weeks ago ("Long Island Vines" New York Times). He said some lovely things, and I was very happy he agreed with me on that.

MF: Your new labels are beautiful, with the compass rose.

PL: Yes, I like them too. It struck me that we kind of acquired a franchise name with "Peconic Bay." As the region becomes more famous, and it will, the name Peconic Bay reflects the distinction of the region. So we designed a label with a compass rose, to reflect the maritime traditions, and the grapes in the rose, reflecting the agriculture of the region, and the nautical chart.

MF: And it is a true chart... You can make out the sounding depths.

PL: Yes, particularly with the Sandy Hill Chardonnay, you can make out the soundings. Yes, we were trying to design a label to evoke the characteristics of the region, and then hopefully our success would make the region proud. I might just mention our philosophy... our commitment is to extract the highest quality that we can. We spent a great deal of money over the purchase, into upgrading the vineyard. We go by the notion that the wine making is in the vineyard. We are really committed to managing the vineyard aggressively to produce consistently good wines. Our approach to the winemaking and selling is we're trying to make approachable wines of high quality that you can count on, year after year, and priced, to the market to as many people as we can to enjoy our wines. As we have exceptional years, we may bottle out the exceptional fruit in a separate label, but Peconic Bay will always represent a consistently high quality wine at a reasonable price. Our "local flavor" labeling, spearheaded by Matt, salutes and celebrates the non-oenophile community, and hopefully, will draw more people into the pleasures of drinking wine.

Osprey's – Dominion of Diverse Wines

Osprey's Dominion must be one of the more romantic and poetic names of vineyards both here on Long Island and even further afield. It pays homage to the beautiful and majestic bird which graces much of the eastern part of the North Fork, though, rather ironically, the folk at the vineyard admit that, at present, none of these birds reside on their properties in Peconic.

Since the first twenty acres of vines were planted back in 1983, the vineyards now have expanded to cover seventy-four acres with varieties which include the staples of chardonnay, merlot, cabernet sauvignon and cabernet franc and also some of the less common, such as, johannesburg riesling and gamay (the classic grape of Beaujolais). The winery produces around 15,000 cases of estate-grown wines a year.

Deborah Wilm is the general manager of Osprey's and she moved into the world of wine from the much more prosaic world of banking only eight months ago. "I was a Vice President with Long Island Savings Bank and when I left them I first of all started up my own consulting company. We had a summer house out here in Cutchogue, so I knew the area well and I decided to look around for a suitable position and a really fulfilling job on the North Fork. Even though I do not have a major background in the wine industry, I am a professional manager and I have always worked hard to be a good communicator and motivator. I was delighted when the owners of the winery offered me this position and it is proving to be a very enjoyable challenge. It is great to work so close to home in such romantic surroundings but we do work a lot of unsociable hours and it very much is a business with all the problems that businesses have to deal with. In the eight months that I have been here, I have learned a lot about grapes and wine making and wines and also I realize just how much there still is to learn. Before I came here my knowledge of wine was really that of enjoying it as a social drinker. I very soon appreciated just how complex organizing and managing a winery is. Every month, even every day, can produce a totally new challenge. I find it so amusing when people ask us, 'Just what do you all do in the slow season?' - so far the one thing I found totally certain is that there is no such thing as a slow season for a winery and its staff!"

Deborah is, she believes, the only female general manager of a winery on Long Island, so I asked her about any barriers or reservations she may have come across since moving into this totally new environment. "Obviously the world of wine making is very much based on agriculture and this, traditionally, has largely been a male dominated industry. Fortunately, I have self confidence in my skills, particularly my people skills and to me team building is so very important in any enterprise that sets out to be successful. Our owners are very much hands on people in everything they do. Bill Tyree still concentrates most of his time on his main businesses but Bud Koehler, who was one of the two partners who started this project, is largely retired from his other businesses and he spends a lot of his time here and takes a major role in the running of the winery."

As Deborah rightly said, wineries, like any good business rely on teamwork and the other key members is due to come out of barrel soon. Early tasting makes us believe that this is a wine which could exceed the '97 reserve chardonnay. Looking at the reds, we have recently released our '97 flight. This a meritage blended wine made from 50% merlot, 45% cabernet sauvignon and 5% cabernet franc. It is a full bodied wine has very balanced tannins and a velvety texture. The aroma brings hints of berry fruits, herbs and oakiness with a good long finish. This is the first bordeaux blend wine from this winery and this is something we intend to build upon in subsequent vintages."

Osprey's Dominion also makes a range of true fruit wines. We buy in tons of fruit such as peaches, strawberries and cherries and they are made into wine which we sell for $6 to $7 and they are very popular especially in the summer," Deborah explained. "They are best drunk on their own or as an accompaniment for ice creams or light pastries."

The new team at Osprey's Dominion will have to wait for the results of this year's harvest to be made into wine before their expertise as a team can truly be judged. At this stage, they all strongly believe that they are well on track to achieve their objectives of continued quality and organizational improvements coupled with planned growth.

The Osprey's tasting room and its electric selection of popular wines. Deborah Wilm and Peter Silverberg of Osprey's team are the vineyard manager, Tom Stevenson and the winemaker, Peter Silverberg. "Even though they both have only been here a relatively short while," Deborah went on, "I already realize just how fortunate I am that they are part of our team. They have very different personalities but they complement each other and respect each other's abilities. Obviously it is vital to have excellent rapport between these two functions of the winery if we are going to achieve our aims with respect to quality and yield."

Tom Stevenson became vineyard manager in December 1998. He is a graduate of UC Davis where he majored in Agricultural Systems and Environment and specialized in Viticulture. Tom worked for just over a year at another vineyard on Long Island before being taking on this major new role.

Peter Silverberg is also a graduate of UC Davis but he majored in fermentation science and specialized in oenology. After graduation and a spell in a winery in Washington state, he moved across the world to Israel where he stayed for seven years, working as an assistant winemaker in the very large Golan Heights Winery which produces around 280,000 cases a year. He also consulted on the start up of the Bazalet boutique winery, which became operational last year. "I was very happy working in Israel," he explained. "But one day I realized that I wanted to come back to the US and after I had returned to California I applied for this post and was delighted to obtain it."

When asked to evaluate their current range of wines, Peter offered the following comments. "We only have small quantities left of the award winning '97 reserve chardonnay and this is still very good and sells for $22 a bottle. It is a wine with good fruity flavors coupled with some spices. We have just released the '98 chardonnay which sells for $13 and has been 100% barrel fermented. This wine is a good chardonnay with plenty of fruit with a spicy oak mix. Looking forward a little, we have very high hopes of the '99 chardonnay which

William Fevre An opulent and full-bodied Grand Cru with attractive layers of pear, honey and toasted oak nuances. (441)

CHABLIS "LES CLOS" 1997 37.95 455.40

William Fevre "Lean and crisp, showing so-so-ripeness, there is decent fruit, spice and honey in this medium-bodied white, which should go well with shellfish." - Wine Spectator (805)

CHABLIS "MONTEE DE TONNERRE" 1997 19.95 239.40

William Fevre A ripe and intense Premier Cru Chablis with a fine herb character, pear, earth and mineral complexities and good balance. (234)

CHABLIS "VIEILLES VIGNES" 1997 15.95 191.40

Chateau de Maligny Produced from older vines, this aristocratic Chablis displays uncommon depth and complexity. From the historic cellars of Chateau de Maligny recently restored by Jean Durrup. (765)

CHATEAU de LA CHAIZE 1998

Chateau de La Chaize, built in 1676, is located in the heart of Beaujolais and is the star among the wine estates of Brouilly. La Marquise Nicole de Roussy de Sales inherited the Chateau in 1967. Through hard work the Roussy de Sales family transformed this "Sleeping beauty" into the most successful wine estate in Brouilly. This 1998 Brouilly displays a beautiful balance of ripe fruit and supple tannins. (990)

Simplicity, freshness and flavor, this is the essence of what you will experience when you dine at this delightful restaurant in Mattituck. The restaurant is situated in the Matt-a-Mar marina by the banks of the Mattituck inlet, which gives an appropriately watery feel to accompany the restaurant's name.

The proprietor, Ettore Pennach, whom we talked to in the outdoor area of the restaurant before we got down to the serious part of the evening's activities, is a Brooklyn native, "My family originally came to the US from just outside Naples and I grew up in a very typical large Italian family and grew to love food and good cooking. I didn't pursue this but became an electrician at first until about twenty years ago when I changed careers and bought a restaurant in Smithtown. Then, about twelve years ago we bought a snack bar on this property. Over the years we have added to it and now we have the main restaurant and an outdoor dining area plus a private room which holds up to 120 people and which is in demand for wedding rehearsals and so on. This year seems to be a very good year for weddings, perhaps because every one wants to be married in the year 2000. The marina here is also expanding and a new section is opening this year so that means that we will have even more hungry boaters to satisfy. I just hope that they don't all come in together at 7 on a Saturday night," he went on with a smile.

Ettore is a very relaxed person, at least outwardly and the cooking is shared with his son, Brian, who decided to pursue a cooking career at this stage of his life even though his formal qualifications are as an accounting major from Hofstra. "Cooking has always been an important part of my life," Brian explained, "It is a very demanding profession but there are rewards as well and overall I find it very satisfying."

Ettore's restaurant is truly a family business, as he proudly explained while standing in front of the very imposing mural representing Italy, which he commissioned and largely designed and which covers the whole of one large wall in the main dining room. "My wife is here at the weekends and is the hostess and she also makes the most delicious cheesecake you will find anywhere. Our daughter, Karen is the hostess during the week and waits table at weekends. My son, Michael runs the bar at weekends and our youngest boy, Andrew is only ten but he loves to help out in our snack bar."

Moving to our table with a wonderful view over the water, Ettore first brought us fresh mozzarella with prosciutto and roasted red peppers dressed with a superb Basil oil and balsamic vinegar blend. This was our first indication of the depth of flavors we were to experience with the sweetness of the peppers and the clean taste of the mozzarella. We were delighted with the bread basket and we fought each other to wipe the serving plate clean.

Stuffed artichoke is served in many restaurants and my wife is a great lover of this dish. Suffice it to say that, in her opinion, this was the best stuffed artichoke she had eaten and who am I to argue with her assessment! Again we fought to clean the plate.

Eggplant Sorrentino, as prepared by Ettore and Brian is another delightful appetizer. The blend of eggplant, ricotta cheese, prosciutto and mozzarella was incredibly light in texture and again delivered a very subtle but intense overall flavor. This, to me is one dish to put on your must try list here. Talking about this dish with Ettore, he confirmed that it is one of the very best sellers.

Moving on to the main dishes, filet mignon was the special of the day. Now I have to declare, that filet mignon is never my first choice of steak, as I much prefer sirloin. If anywhere has changed my opinion on this, the chefs at this restaurant did, for the meat we were served was cooked to perfection with garlic and mushrooms and served au jus. We both agreed that it far surpassed the steak we had recently eaten in one of the top Manhattan Steak Houses. At the Greenport, at the eastern end of the North Fork is one of the more idiosyncratic of towns, with its mixture of shops, restaurants, ships and so on and has maintained its charm despite the changing times. As you walk into the Greenport Tea Company, situated on Main Street in a block just a short stroll from the harbor, your eyes are immediately delighted by the warm eclectic mixture of bric-a-brac, memorabilia, tea pots and a large fireplace standing disconnected in a corner of the room. The whole room has the warm, jumbly feel that is so typical of tearooms in parts of Ireland and, as Adrienne Noonan told us, this is exactly what she and her husband, Willy, set out to achieve when they first opened the Greenport Tea Company back in 1992. "We love to travel and had been in many tea rooms and found that each had an individual charm of its own, so when we both retired this was our retirement project which turned our dream into a reality.

Although they experimented one year serving dinners, Adrienne confessed that it really became too much for them and so they have settled on serving meals from 11.00 am until 5.00 p.m. and also opening for breakfast during the summer season, from 8.00 a.m. till 11.00 a.m.

The menu at the Greenport Tea Company is as eclectic as the surroundings and ranges from a selection of appetizers, through soups, quiches, salads, wraps, to a formal High Tea and also desserts. We decided to put ourselves in Adrienne's hands so that she could demonstrate some of the foods they are proud to offer to their customers. Virtually everything served in the restaurant is home made and the soups were very good introductions. Both the lentil and the spinach soups were served as broths, in the Irish style with the vegetable in the broth and not pureed and had delicately light textures with appealing tastes. With the soups came a plate of Adrienne's home baked breads. We sampled the corn bread, raisin fruit bread and the Irish black bread before we asked for them to remove further temptation and we filled ourselves with these treats. It is often said that you can judge the quality of a restaurant by their soups and the bread and on this basis, the Greenport Tea Company had already passed, with honors! Next we sampled the Platter of smoked Salmon served with capers, onions and flavorsome tomatoes and of course, more of the tempting bread only this time it was traditional Irish brown bread. The salmon was of excellent quality, maybe not quite to the standard you would find in Ireland or Scotland but delicately smoked and well worth ordering. They offer a range of salads such as Greek, spinach, cobb and the House salad which we had. This was a very good selection of very fresh local mixed greens which, very importantly, had been carefully dressed with their special house dressing of honey mustard and tarragon, so that each leaf had been coated and there was not the annoying pool of dressing that too often accompanies dressed salads. Again this, for us, was a real plus point.

The Greenport Tea Company should also be on the list of those who are quiche lovers. Its quiches are not merely home made, they are first class, with lightly set fillings in a crisp base. During our visit, the quiches of the day were tomato/basil and artichoke and we found it hard to decide which we preferred and as with the bread, we could have lingered longer and eaten more but we had to move on to explore more delights. The daily special list included Bay scallops, lightly sautéed on a bed of Fresh greens and these proved that we were right to move on because they were everything that our bay scallops should be, succulent, moist and full of flavor. We must admit that some more of Adrienne's bread was used to mop up the juices from the scallops. Well it was too good to let go to waste!

Moving on to the shrimp salad wrap and the oriental chicken wrap was unfortunately slightly anti-climatic because, whilst the fillings were excellent, the wraps themselves were too dry and chewy. Adrienne told us that wraps are a relatively new addition to her menu and the wraps are purchased and she will be looking at other types of wrap.

One of the specialties of the Greenport Tea Company, as you would expect from the name is to serve tea. This does not mean simply serving cups or pots of tea but to offering a full, traditional High Tea. Now, I can state with absolute authority, that, contrary to some opinions, the inhabitants of the British Isles do not, any longer, cease what they are engaged in doing each day at around four in the afternoon and repair for a Spot of Tea, (today it is more likely to be a double decaffeinated latte at Starbucks or whatever is the in coffee place there today!). However there is no doubt that the tradition of Afternoon or High Tea, (and yes, there is a difference), is one to be enjoyed on special occasions still and what better place to do this than in the traditional town such as Greenport. If you have never indulged, my advice is, try it and to hell with the diet for one day. Afternoon Tea, at the Greenport Tea Company, will be served to you on a Three Tiered Stand, on which you will find a selection of assorted finger sandwiches (with the crusts cut off in the prescribed fashion), followed by assorted mini pastries and fruit tart. The real heart of a true Afternoon Tea though comes with the deliciously naughty fresh baked scone served with clotted cream and strawberry jam. Again, for those new to this, clotted cream is not sweet but thick, light, delicately flavored and potentially addictive, which can be a pity to dieters.

Finally, what would a Tea Company be without tea. This is something which is personally dear to my heart, inasmuch as the search for robust, full bodied tea with a pleasing aroma and lingering aftertaste which encourages you to finish the pot, almost takes on the role of the quest for the Holy Grail. Suffice it to report that the Greenport Tea Company has obtained from the shores of the Emerald Isle, tea with a fragrance and taste you can really savor. Being a farsighted lady, Adrienne also offers this tea for sale - my advice, buy a couple of packs. For some of us it is a long drive to Greenport and good tea seems to be drunk very quickly.

In the interests of balance, I must add that they have a beer and wine license (Yes, they do sell Draft Guinness) and also offer some unusual and very pleasant iced teas.

Recommendation:

The Greenport Tea Company offers good home prepared fare at very reasonable prices. Because there are not many establishments offering Afternoon Tea nowadays, this would be my first choice - it really fits into the Greenport atmosphere and is enhanced by the ambiance that Adrienne and Willy have created. Soups and quiches, based on our tastings were also extremely good. Remember to take home some scones or bread and of course the tea.

Fusion Wines and Superior Dining at the James Lane Cafe

The James Lane Café in East Hampton is hosting a series of exotic food and wine tastings. The idea is to introduce diners to special wines and wineries. The first series highlighted Robert Mondavi of California and Baron Philippe De Rothschild of France who joined to create unique blends of wine at their new Opus One Winery.

Head chef Ron Reid of the James Lane Café created an exciting menu to complement the unique flavors of each wine: seared day-boat scallops, vichyssoise, smoked Snake River trout salad, mesquite grilled lamb rack and a delectable chocolate soufflé for dessert.

We started with a crisp Robert Mondavi Chardonnay, followed by an exquisite Robert Mondavi Reserve Fume. Special guest France Poesner of the Opus One winery gave a short but informative talk describing the unique blending of various varieties of wines that make up Opus One. Cabernet Sauvignons from '92, '94 and '96 were selected to show how each complemented the rack of lamb dish. It allowed each diner to pick their individual favorite. The wines chosen were all of excellent quality and usually only available in boutique wine shops or at auctions. The wines were intense, full-bodied, elegantly structured and velvety smooth. There were a lot of "oohs and aahs" expressed by the several tables of diners. Great choices!

The surprise of the evening was dessert, chocolate soufflé with mixed berries. Believe it or not, the presentation of the '88 Opus One Cabernet Sauvignon really showed how wine could be a real adventure at any stage of the meal. The wine actually heightened the silky softness of the soufflé.

Perhaps the best compliment was the enthusiasm experienced by the guests. We are all looking forward to the future fusion of fine food and a carefully selected series of wines. The James Lane Café, which is now open year-round by popular demand, has really given the sophisticated diner something to look forward to. Call 631-324-6100 for more information on future events.

we moved to the sweeter offerings. Spiced peach soup served with a peach sorbet in a frozen peach would have been even better made with a fresh peach to make it easier to eat but this still was a real treat for peach lovers, especially the spiced peach soup which was very interesting with its medley of subtle tastes.

For our desserts proper, Wayne did us really proud. A tasting plate of exquisite creme brulee, an oven roasted strawberry on a light pastry and chocolate cake with lemon grass ice cream produced a veritable explosion of flavor and together with a strong espresso coffee closed out a memorable dining experience.

With our meal, our very knowledgeable server Claire not only talked to us about the dishes but also poured very complementary wines for each course. We particularly favored the New Zealand Sauvignon Blanc, the Alsatian 98 Pinot Gris and the Beaumes de Venise. La Plage has an extensive wine list and this is something which Wayne takes as seriously as his cooking and he told me that he is always looking for wines to serve in the restaurant and also to lay down for the future.

Appetizers and salads range from $6 to $12 and main courses from $17 to $28. Bookings are essential and so are directions if you are not familiar with the area.

Wayne Wadington's restaurant has really put Wading River on the map for those seeking exceptionally good food imaginatively cooked and presented. The future for this very talented entrepreneurial 29 year old and his wife should have a lot to offer, when you look at what they have accomplished so far in life.

a peak at this point.

In a change of pace, Ettore next tempted us with another of his specialties, lobster meat lightly sautéed and served on a bed of spaghetti and dressed with basil oil and lemon juice.

This is a dish where the essential delicate nature of the lobster has been kept and the perfectly al dente pasta and the dressing blended to produce a wonderful totality. Ettore only uses the finest Italian pasta in his restaurant.

Finally, Ettore insisted that we had to find room for at least a taste of another of their fish specials, swordfish, grilled with a lime dressing and served with sweet potato fries, (the latter could become seriously addictive.) Again total freshness was the key to this simple but very satisfying dish.

After a suitable pause for digestion and some more discussion with Ettore he offered us a Fresh Berry Crisp served with vanilla ice cream. The melange of gently stewed blueberries, raspberries and strawberries was served warm with a delicious crisp topping and arrived at our table just as the sun was starting to set. With the gentle background of sweet music and a cup of full flavored coffee, this brought a fitting ending to a splendid evening of enjoying food prepared from the freshest of ingredients and excellently cooked.

Recommendation:

A Touch of Venice is a restaurant to experience and once you have experienced it I guarantee that you will return. Everything from the wait staff to the food fills you with a glow that lingers long after you have left. Please - Book at weekends and be prepared to wait a little - it will repay your patience and also you will be able to relax and enjoy the views. The restaurant has a sensible wine list and focuses on North Fork vineyards with many being available by the glass. Appetizers are $6 to $9 and most main courses range from $12 up to $21. Daily specials are also featured on their menus.

LENZ

The Lenz Winery, Peconic

The New York Times, August, 1998

In Tasting, L.I. Wines Hold Own vs. French.
By Richard J. Scholem

"Either prestigious French wines are wildly overpriced, Long Island wines are the buy of the ages or both. At least those were the conclusions that resulted from a recent blind tasting of Lenz Long Island wines and high-flying French headliners like La Grande Dame 1988 and '89, Chateau Pétrus 1992, '93 and '94, J. Drouhin, Montrachet Marquis de Laguiche 1994, '95 and '96, and Veuve Clicquot Gold 1989."

"And how do Lenz wines that cost from $10 to $30 stack up in head-to-head competition with French superstars? They equal or surpass them."

DAN TRAVELS

down your spine.

Another new trend that irks me is what I call headlight mania. Has anyone noticed that most of all the new cars and trucks have zany headlights of all different sizes and shapes? Don't get me wrong, I'm all for creative freedom in the design of new cars. Has anyone out there thought about what these once simple devices add to the cost of a car and what they cost to replace if broken? I once had to replace the stone chipped headlight of my wife's Acura coupe. I was shocked to find that a replacement for this aero-shaped piece of glass costs $300. I bit the bullet, and bought the glass. I figured what the heck, the car was so good it was the only money I'd ever have to put into it. I decided to install the headlight myself. After pulling the car into my garage and spending an hour trying to figure out a method to proceed with what should have been a simple task, I finally had to call Acura service for advice. To my amazement, I was told that the front bumper had to be removed to change the headlight!

To put this in the proper perspective, for years I've been doing my own maintenance, like changing "normal" round or rectangular ten dollar headlights in many of my cars. The job usually takes five minutes. All new cars are simply getting too complex even when it comes to a simple thing like a headlight replacement.

I feel sorry for the car collectors of the future. When some of the more desirable cars being built today are thirty to fifty years old and are collectible, how on earth will they be restored? Vehicles today are really complex, and they ain't getting simpler. Goodbye, vent windows and push-pull switches. Hello, traction control, ABS, multi-port fuel injection with multi-sized induction runners, and on-board satellite navigation.

Kiss K.I.S.S. goodbye.

WHEN in New York

City Residence-- Real Estate's "Lone Ranger"

Having brokered real estate for more than ten years on Fire Island, my Manhattan client base was well in place when the demand for New York real estate started to skyrocket in 1995. At this time I was already a summer resident of North Haven's and as a real estate broker on Fire Island was inundated with requests to broker property in Manhattan. Business in the City took off at a fast pace, there was no need to continue doing business on Fire Island so I referred my clients to another broker and I'm still a summer resident of North Haven.

Having owned and operated a boutique residential brokerage business for so many years, I decided to go it alone once again and open City Residence. Most people thought it was a crazy idea considering that real estate firms in New York have as many as 800 agents on staff and there I was starting a maverick "Lone Ranger" operation. Successful affiliation with the Real Estate Board of New York has enabled me to network with the largest real estate firms in the City. Property listings are co-brokered by other REBNY member firms so my listings database is always up to date with the best and most exclusive offerings available. We offer our clients the most personalized brokerage services.

When representing buyers of New York City properties, my approach is very conservative. After all, I'm helping a client spend their money. I believe that there is a combination of factors that must add up before a bid is placed on a property. The location is of great importance especially when buying in a red-hot market. If and when there is a down turn in the market place a recognizable "Blue Chip" location will protect your investment. The layout of a particular apartment must really suit the buyers needs. Building amenities, proximity to transportation and schools are also of great importance. I listen extremely well to what my customers needs are and I do my best to fine the perfect match. I am well versed in financing properties, and the other aspects of condominium and townhouse purchases knowing cooperative boards and their approval process. I do not waste my client's time. After all, and, I have told this to my client, I don't get paid by the hour...so I have to know exactly what I'm doing. Clients are different and having the ability to analyze their situation and then offer the right advice is the key to being successful.

My business approach when representing an exclusive listing is very much the same. I am very conservative when pricing a property for sale. I do not promise inflated sale prices just to get a new exclusive. If I can't deliver what I had anticipated to be the correct selling price on a property than I can't be a successful broker. When a new exclusive listing is signed, I immediately offer it to the entire real estate community for co-brokering. The more exposure in the marketplace, the better the chances are of bringing about the highest and most qualified offer to purchase. I qualify potential buyers with great care because a failed deal (due to financial issues or a "board turndown" of a buyer) can set back the sale process by more than three months. Most often in real estate, the timing of the deal is crucial to both the seller as well as the buyer.

I have sold properties in some of the finest buildings in New York. I have worked with some very high profile clients. I am constantly looking for the next referral, which means that you're successful. At this point in time, four years later, I have a staff that includes three sales associates, one whose expertise is dealing with foreign clients and condominium purchases.

I am extremely dedicated to my clients. When brokering real estate you become a new best friend, you're there to take the occasional mid night call, offer advice and listen to all kinds of stories. I've heard some of the most interesting things imaginable.

Customer satisfaction sets us apart from the rest of the brokerage community. Our business was built on it!
—Steven P Wald, President

Shop 'til You Drop ...With Maria Tennariello

What a weekend this was. My mom and sister came out for a shopping weekend, all the way from New Jersey, I might add, to do what we all love to do in my family. I thought it would be nice to do some antique shopping too, we all agreed! So...let's do some shopping.

The store that I really wanted to show off this weekend to my mom and sis was, Table 'd Art on Main Street in Southampton. This shop is a one-of-a-kind in my book. We pulled up and were lucky enough to park right out in front of this beautiful store, admiring the window in all its splendor. This store is unique and fresh and certainly captures your heart. Table 'd Art has manufactured furniture and accessories for over twenty-four years and the modern look of Art Deco brought back such wonderful memories for myself, my mom and my sister. We especially loved the cast aluminum outdoor furniture that is not only beautiful but durable. There are unusual decorative candles, photo frames from England, vases, signed pieces and so much more, (that's an entire column). Stop in and say hi to Roger and have him take you on a tour of this shop that is obsessed with beauty.

Rags also on Main Street is having a 40% off some merchandise sale going on right now. So, if I were you, I would check this one out. The early bird always catches the worm.

This one is hot off the press: If you are a designer Robert Lee Morris fan, you will meet him in person on Friday, August 4, 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. and Saturday, August 5, 12 noon to 3 p.m. at Rose Jewelers store in Southampton. A personal appearance along with a "Trunk Show" is on the agenda showing Robert Lee Morris' unique and beautiful creations. Rose Jewelers has a wonderful weekly summer event line up scheduled this summer and this is a very exciting one indeed.

Well, it's that time again. It's time to stock up on all-weather wicker with savings up to 40% off at Hildreth's Department Stores, Main Street, Southampton, Clearance Center on West Main Street in Southampton and House and Garden in Bridgehampton. Look for names like Brown Jordan, Lloyd Flanders and Lane Venture and save, save, save!

Speaking of Trunk Shows, Home, James on Main Street in East Hampton is presenting a very special kind of trunk show featuring one-of-a-kind and rare limited editions of the personal collection of the late Mildred Mottahadeh. This special show will run for two weeks only! So get on down there and see for yourself!

At Mark, Fore & Strike on Main Street in East Hampton look for luxurious pashmina wraps priced nicely at only $149.99. Pashmina's are made from soft and rare cashmere yarns, blended with silk for strength and they are hand woven. Regularly priced at $198., you can save $50. They are available in stunning colors. I love the purple.

At Main Beach Surf and Sport on Montauk Highway in Wainscott, there are great deals on rentals and purchases on kayak and canoes. Call them for details at 537-2716.

Beach Plum Antiques and Janet Whale Antiques has an outstanding collaboration, bringing you great finds in Country, American, English, American Arts and Crafts and custom furniture design. Located on Main Street in Bridgehampton, give it a look.

In Water Mill on Montauk Highway, Butlers Art and Antiques is packed to the rafters with a unique collection of 18th, 19th and 20th century oil paintings, sculpture and decorative merchandise. There is a large selection of furniture circa 1800 to 1970. Look for the beautiful turn of the century house on Montauk Highway.

Aesthetics Home Furnishings & Antiques located in Water Mill is one of the most beautiful antique shops I've seen in a while. My mom and sister oooed and aaahhed as we walked through. There are sofas, sleepers, armoires, console coffee and dining tables, great lighting and functional country pine antiques.

Sag Harbor's Fishers Home Furnishings located

Main Street is having a wonderful display of decorative accessories along with furniture, upholstery, antiques, game boards, lamps, vases, bed linens, rugs, children's toys and bed linens, imported mirrors, original paintings and more. Visit their showroom and annex seven days a week.

If your looking for a fantastic selection of bikes, sales, service and rentals, look no further. At BikeHampton on Main Street in Sag Harbor you will find more that you bargained for. BikeHampton boasts being the vendor of voluptuous velocipedes and that they are. Give them a call at 725-7329.

At Kirkwood Antiques and Fine Arts on Main Street, Sag Harbor we saw some beautiful furniture, decorative accessories, silver, period lighting (which I love) Oriental carpets and more. They do a monthly exhibition of fine arts here too.

If you're thinking Kayak, East Coast Adventure Tours gives lessons, tours, has rentals and sales on Dogger, Northwest and Islander Kayaks. Located on Noyak Road in Sag Harbor and also in Southampton check this new fun sport out.

Well, the trip back to Sag Harbor was a pleasurable one, chatting about all the beautiful merchandise that we saw and bought. Whew, good thing they only come to visit about once a month, I would really be broke.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

Gems Of The Past Benefits Local Charities

Gems of the Past, a new East Hampton antique, estate and fine jewelry store located at 58B Park Place Passage, has joined the Paul Annacone Tennis Classic cause by donating a necklace and matching earrings valued at $10,400. Karen J. Adler, Graduate Gemologist and owner, said that this 22 karat gold set took craftsmen eighteen months to create the detailed Etruscan Revival heavily granulated work. The soldered granulation (rather than kiln granulation) takes extreme patience and skill to execute. Very few goldsmiths excel at this very ancient style, still using much of the same primitive methods and style that the Etruscans in the 4th century BC.

The lovely necklace measures seventeen inches in length, has fifteen graduated beads covered with an ornate geometric granulation pattern, and has diameters that measure 14.75mm in the center down to the 9.0mm on the sides. Separated by disk-shaped spacers with granulation encircling them, the beads and spacers are strung on a handmade serpentine chain. Mrs. Adler stated that one of her New York City clients, a goldsmith himself, stated that handmade gold chains alone can run between $12,000 and $14,000 in the Village. He was in awe of the outstanding work that went into this set. The matching earring are round with a raised dome-like central portion, all being covered in the geometric granulated design.

Granulation is an ancient form of decoration achieved by soldering tiny spheres of gold onto a gold background. In the fine Etruscan work, the tiny spheres measure about 0.25mm and smaller. This style of gold work disappeared from the world completely by around the year 1000. In the mid-Victorian era, 1860's, Italian goldsmiths rediscovered this wonderful jewelry art form, and its renewed popularity lasted no more than twenty years. Because of its difficulty to learn and practice, man is still trying to duplicate what the Etruscans perfected over two thousand years ago! This lovely donated artistic set certainly seems to have achieved the near impossible with exquisite minute detail and outstanding quality. Plan to stop by Gems of the Past to preview this wonderful necklace and earrings. Although this is only available for purchase via auction the evening of August 21, many other outstanding one of a kind jewelry items await your perusal.

The Paul Annacone Tennis Classic 2000 at the East Hampton Indoor Tennis Club is benefiting East Hampton Day Care, The Kendall Madison Scholarship Fund, Meals on Wheels and The Robert F. Kennedy Memorial. For tickets to this exciting event Sunday evening, August 20 and Monday August 21, 2000, please call 324-1325.

LOUISE PEABODY AT MARK HUMPHREY GALLERY

Louise Peabody has a fine new series at Southampton's Mark Humphrey Gallery; it is a somewhat surprising one, especially if you were expecting work that mirrored her cover on a fairly recent Dan's Papers. There, the solitary female figure was cast in a provocative pose with a demeanor that suggested, "I have a story to tell, and you'd better listen." This doesn't mean that the art was the "in-your-face" variety. However, the painting was certainly "in-your-heart," whatever that might signify.

Many of Ms. Peabody's pieces at the time were similarly characterized, a series that took risks with its subject matter and theme—the kind of work that was personal and thought-provoking. The kind of art we need exhibited more often in the Hamptons.

The artist's current show seem to be an about-face. The images, while still figurative, are often not solitary. There are families gathered on the beach, recalling a Paul Reiska ambience. The style ("The Silhouette Series") is often more impressionistic, too, evoking a romantic mood that appears more "gentle," (although Ms. Peabody's woman figures in her previous series were surely not "tough").

As usual with Ms. Peabody's work, there is a sense of authentic detail in such works as "Roberta" and "Domestic Goddess." The artist's sense of setting is equally pervasive and potent, the beach scenes conjuring up windswept and weatherworn vistas.

There are two paintings in the exhibit, however, that do not fit this pattern. "Anniversary Dinner" recalls Ms. Peabody's series dealing with more personal, relational issues, specifically lack of connection. (A man and woman are having dinner at a restaurant, yet the husband is on the phone, the woman looking off into space.)

"Birthday Girl" features another kind of celebration, another rite-of-passage. Interlapping planes of images reveal a clown/doll which becomes a metaphor for the little girl. Its ambiguous nature, however, brings up some significant questions: Is the girl happy or sad? Will she ever grow up?

Louise Peabody's works are available for viewing at the Mark Humphrey Gallery in Southampton.

HONORING THE ARTIST: CURT HOPPE

When most artists paint the East End, it's usually the stunning landscape or beautiful houses that attract them first. Not so with New York City resident and frequent Hamptons visitor, Curt Hoppe. He paints "where people actually go, the everyday places, not the glitzy ones." He paints his own favorite spots, like Sip n' Soda in Southampton, Sam's Restaurant in East Hampton and Iacano Farm on Long Lane. (All of these pieces will be in his new show at the Wallace Gallery.)

"I like buildings and neighborhoods with character," Mr. Hoppe explains. One painting that especially qualifies is Sam's Restaurant in the evening. "It's completely black," the artist notes. "There's a sign for Rose's Midnight Special. There's carvings on the wall which go back to the 1940s."

Mr. Hoppe also appreciates places where people are very much part of the scene, where there's an atmosphere that creates familiarity, warmth and a sense of family. We can see why Mr. Hoppe has chosen to live in Little Italy, where such qualities certainly prevail. Many of his paintings capture this neighborhood with equal warmth and color, even though paint may be peeling from dilapidated buildings. Naturally, the works reflect Mr. Hoppe's own point-of-view.

We can't help but also notice Mr. Hoppe's penchant for signs. "I was a sign painter in Minneapolis where I grew up," he reminds this writer. "I like the play on words. When I come into a small town, signs tell a lot about the place. Did you know that James Rosenquest, the Pop artist, was a sign painter?"

Signs still hold a fascination for Mr. Hoppe. "I recently noticed this 'fire and brimstone' message on a Southampton Church's sign that really caught my eye," he remarks with interest. "I had to take a photograph of it. I could work an entire lifetime on the East End painting familiar local places. Places missed by the weekenders."

One such site is a Southampton driving range, not to be confused with a country club's golf range like the Maidstone's. "I noticed a shed on the grounds; it was something beautiful," Mr. Hoppe notes. "I caught a solitary figure in the background who reminded me of The Lone Ranger from the past. Clayton Moore who played The Lone Ranger had just died the week before."

While this week's cover by Mr. Hoppe is celebrating Dan's Papers fortieth Anniversary (and was depicted on a plate for The Retreat auction), he has a different project in mind for the future: "I want to do something supernatural, mysterious."

That's all Mr. Hoppe will say at the present time. Whatever the "mysterious" may involve, however, we can bet the work will somehow show everyday places with character.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Mr. Hoppe will be showing his work at East Hampton's Wallace Gallery from August 17- September 11.

Take Five 2000 with Jan Silver

We hit a midsummer high this week. East End venues are crammed with theater, classical music, special films and interesting lectures—plus benefits around every corner. Here are some of the week's highlights: Hampton Shakespeare Festival's Much Ado About Nothing opens in Montauk; two dynamic musical plays (Bay Street Theatre's Love, Janis and Montauk Theatre Productions' Always...Patsy Cline) are still here; the Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival opens; Pianofest has its Grand Marathon Finale Concert; and Guild Hall holds its annual Clothesline Art Sale. Roy Scheider and Mercedes Ruehl try out Joe Pintauro's new play in Westhampton Beach on Friday, and theater masters Edward Albee and Robert Wilson talk about their similarities and differences in East Hampton on Saturday.

Sports events this weekend include the Mercedes Benz Polo Challenge match at the Bridgehampton Polo Club on Saturday at 4 p.m. (raindate Sunday, 2 p.m.; open admission $10) and Dan's Papers' 28th annual Kite Fly on Sunday from 5 to 7 p.m. at Sagg Main Beach, Sagaponack. The Clyde Beatty/Cole Brothers Circus will be at the Elks Club field in Southampton next Monday and Tuesday.

Some of the benefits this weekend: The Beach Ball for Southampton Hospital on Saturday; "Shut It Down!" a celebrity-backed benefit to close the Millstone nuclear plant (Roy Scheider, Spalding Gray, Hal McKusick, Percy Heath, Jan Schlichtmann, etc.) in Montauk on Saturday; the Sunset Fiesta in Water Mill on Saturday; Family Counseling Service's dinner dance in Quogue on Saturday; and the Giant Steps 5K Run/Walk for the American Cancer Society (with NY Yankees manager Joe Torre) on Sunday.

THEATER

The Hamptons Shakespeare Festival's production of the comedy Much Ado About Nothing began previews on Wednesday and opens this Saturday at Theodore Roosevelt County Park in Montauk. The show plays Wednesday through Sunday, 7:30 p.m. outdoors; come early and bring a picnic dinner plus sweaters. A voluntary contribution of $10 per person is suggested. There is a party with cocktails and picnic dinner ($50) before the Saturday performance; call the Festival office at (631) 267-0105 to see if tickets are still available.

Bay Street Theatre continues with the electrifying musical biography show about Janis Joplin, Love, Janis in Sag Harbor this Wednesday through August 6. Tickets may be scarce for this popular show but try the box office at (631) 725-9500. The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center presents a staged reading of a new Joe Pintauro play, Karma Boomerang, starring Roy Scheider and Mercedes Ruehl. The story concerns what happens when one playwright steals another's play, wife and life. On Saturday, female impersonator Christopher Peterson performs his Eyecons show, parodies of Marilyn Monroe, Carol Channing, Madonna and Barbra Streisand among others. The WHBPAC shows start at 8:30 p.m.; call (631)-288-1500 for tickets.

East Hampton's LongHouse Reserve will host a dialogue between Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Edward Albee and avant-garde theatrical director Robert Wilson on Saturday at 6 p.m. The event starts at 5 p.m. with a reception and guests are invited to explore LongHouse's unusual gardens. Tickets start at $75 for LongHouse members, $100 for guests; call (631) 329-3568.

This is the last weekend to catch Montauk Theatre Productions' staging of Always...Patsy Cline, a musical about a special relationship between the country/western singing star and a fan. The show plays evenings through Sunday at the 6 So. Elm St. theater; call (631) 668-5656 to reserve a seat. East Hampton Playwrights' Theater presents its final staged reading of the summer on Friday and Saturday at 9 p.m. Homesick by Tamar Cole is the story of a troubled professor with a terrible secret who returns home seeking solace from her family. The play features Manhattan actors, and a brief discussion plus dessert follows the performance. For tickets ($15), call 631-329-9909. East Hampton's Guild Hall brings in the Off Broadway Abingdon Theater Company on Monday to present Glory Girls, a new play about a disbanded singing group that is forced into a reunion concert (7 p.m. curtain; tickets $12-$15 at the door).

MUSIC

The Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival just opened. There is a children's concert this Thursday (August 3) at 5 p.m. and an elegant benefit evening at the Atlantic Golf Club on Saturday. The 6:30 p.m. Sunday program at the Bridgehampton Presbyterian Church (now air conditioned!) features Aaron Copland's Appalachian Spring and Mendelssohn's Octet in E-flat. The music of Mozart, Tower, Ewazen and Brahms will be played next Wednesday at 8 p.m. Concert tickets are $25 adults, $20 seniors, $10 children. For seat reservations or benefit tickets (including next Saturday's wine/jazz/tango benefit at Channing Daughters Winery), call the Festival office at (631) 537-6368.

Pianofest, the popular program for emerging concert pianists, holds its Grand Marathon Concert on Saturday at the Avram Fine Arts Theater of Southampton College. Each of the artists will get a chance to play, starting at 7 p.m., and there is an intermission with refreshments. Tickets are $12 at the door. The Chicago Brass Quintet

The Adventures Of Rocky and
Bullwinkle and Chicken RunLAKE COMO (NOT PERRY) IN ITALY, A FAR CRY
(SOB) FROM VERONICA LAKE IN FROSTBITE
FALLS

Here at the Villa D'este and boating through the lake areas of Lombardy, tears well up in my beady little eyes thinking about Franco-American relations (see last week's Paris column) and Franco-American canned spaghetti and other American stuff like skinless franks. What the U.S. has done to things foreign can easily make a grown man (in age anyway) cry like a baby/Conversely, taking the very American animated films of the grand and glorious Disney and so on... it's fun to see what the furriners did and do with what could be the most imaginative of Arts. As to be expected, they took it much more seriously and creatively in content and techniques. Now, in the computer age, we are utilizing the equipment pretty well but, though the pictures are impressive, the content of stores and ideas are still pretty much Alley Oop Neanderthal. This is why Dinosaur was too heavy-footed to have a good track record and TITAN A.E. (After Earth) speedily fell into a dismal, black hole, A.O. (After Opening). More recently Rocky and Bullwinkle and Chicken Run opened but, don't fall into any particular hole . . . new or old... or creatively.

ANALYZE THIS! ROCKY AND BULLWINKLE
MEET DE NIRO

Rocky and Bullwinkle (the movie) reaches back into the recent past of 60's TV. You remember those hardly-at-all animated half-hours, mostly perpetrated by Hanna and Barbera, where characters and their lips hardly moved, like a ventriloquist. They basically were radio shows with drawings and a few-in-betweens. Then Jay Ward gave this stuff a new life... capitalizing on the crudeness by adding self-deprecating humor with deliberate corniness, awful puns and brilliant voice characterizations... mostly impressions of others. It was HIP! and adults were making it difficult for their children to watch it. They, themselves were glued to the set. Dunno why Robert De Niro and his Tribeca Co., decided to make a deal with Ward's daughter to produce it? At any rate it's out there and it's not that it is bad but... maybe if he had a better director like... say, Robert Zemeckis who did the wonderful Roger Rabbit which combined live action and REAL animation, it might have been better but, as it is, the live, terrific actors De Niro as Fearless Leader, Rene Russo as Natasha and Jason Alexander as Boris Badenov are completely lifeless. As are the computer imaged Rocky and Bullwinkle, who now resemble their rubber effigies in the Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Saving the day for mankind and the spirit of the zany crew in Hollywood who did the originals, is about ten minutes, in the movie, of a recreation of the old animation with the original voices of June Foray who did all the female voices and Rocky! (She does the movie Rocky too and there are the voices of Keith Scott who did Bullwinkle, the Narrator, Boris and Fearless Leader, etc. I saw the movie because I'm a fan. You might do better to watch for reruns of the fast, funny and flagrant classics.

IN ITALY, TOO...CHICKEN RUN IS DELICIOUS FOOD FOR THOUGHT

On your side of the Atlantic, the Brit's have landed a good one. Chicken Run isn't just Playdoh fun. Here claymation is careful articulate work and though glass eyes might be considered a cheat, the work of Nick Park and Peter Lord gives yellow, red and blue plasticine very artful life in a charming fable about cooped up chickens in England following World War II. The war won freedom for all, but, there on the Tweedy Farm, the pent up hens know there must be more beyond wire walls and egg-laying shelves. In a plot falling somewhere between Animal Farm, Stalag 17 and Thelma and Louise, gutsy Ginger, a feathery Joan of Arc (voice of Julia Savalha) plans the flock's great escape... over and over again, but no Go! Then things really heat up when Mrs. Tweedy decides to go into the Chicken Pot Pie business! Suddenly, tumbling in on them is... Rocky, the flying... What? No, not another squirrel... a cocky rooster.

MEL GIBSON STILL REVOLTING

Mel Gibson, the patriotic! , had a hard time beating the British, recently. So, he joined them, and he provides a perfect, ticklish, characterization for the American rooster interloper who isn't all he claims to be! There is very little that isn't perfect about this little animation of can-do perseverance. If you have children... fine, but, you can see this movie without them, too. It's bound to find its way to Italy soon, with its big wings fanning gentility, compassion and moxie. I think "moxie" is an Italian word for "the Most," I could be wrong.

HAMPTONS NIGHTLIFE WITH CHRISTINE CARROLL

Shout out of the week goes to: Dennis Santoro thanks for my shout out, here's one for you!

This past week was great for me. Brazil was fun on Monday. It got crowded but not too crowded. The DJ was really good too. Thursday night we went to NV, which as you all know was awesome. They have a really nice crowd there. Friday was my local night. After work we went to World Pie in Bridgehampton, then to the Harbor House in Sag Harbor. I like the Harbor House, it reminds me of when I was in college playing pool and listening to songs on the juke box. We also went to Murph's! I enjoyed the local atmosphere. On Saturday my housemates and I had a luau, so I didn't make it out that night. I made up for it on Sunday though, we went to The Boardy Barn and to The Beach Bar after. I saw so many people that I haven't seen in a long time. I have to say hi to Danny, my first love! I also have to say hello to Jack and the Bud boys although they were nowhere to be found! Well, I promised I'd check out more places and I did. Hope you all had fun as well! Till next week...

Links Within Links

By Rachel Sokol

So many sites, so little time to sort them out. In order to find what you want ASAP on the web, you'll need to know about sites within sites. Instead of conducting a broad search on a specific topic, some domains act as a switchboard or link for others. Or, they simply give you everything you need through just one site. In doing so, your browser of choice can take a rest.

The following websites can ease the hassle of getting tangled in the world wide web. For anything academic related, visit about.com, an online encyclopedia with articles taken from publications worldwide. About calls itself, "The Human Internet" for good reason—searches can be conducted on current events to American History. About.com will also provide links to sites that can provide you with even more information on your topic. This is a plus for consulted works and verification of facts. Instead of digging up the websites for magazine subscription orders, which are generally arranged by publishing company, enews.com supplies subscriptions to hundreds of local and national magazines—some with links to their websites. Enews.com also offers free trial issues of certain magazines, and trust me, they have magazines for all your interests. If you want to keep yourself posted on health and beauty news, visit www.ebody.com. The best feature on this site is the search for certified specialists and doctors in your area, with the option to e-mail health and beauty questions. You can visit the sites and set up a consultation with certified doctors in your area. The Doctor/Specialist searches can be conducted by state or province. Don't get overwhelmed by ebody.com's numerous articles and topic channels. For entertainment, try the simple www.tickets.com, which acts as a forum for sports, entertainment or travel tickets galore. Tickets.com provides information on local and national events such as tennis matches, community theatre productions and the Olympics. If tickets for a specific event, such as a Broadway musical, are not sold on the site, tickets.com, will link you to another purchasing site. And finally, for a site that does comparing and contrasting for you, check out, www.clickthebutton.com. ClickTheButton's product database has some of the most accurate pricing information anywhere on the Internet. Based in Manhattan, their database is updated daily. Clickthebutton also offers a personal Comparison Chart that finds great deals on several products at once. With the click of a button, consumers add items to their Comparison Chart as they browse the Web. When they're ready to buy, Clickthebutton calculates the best total prices on items, from various, credible sites, including sales tax and shipping, and leads them to the store order pages. Clickthebutton.com currently offers price comparisons on over three million products sold on the Web, such as computer hardware and software, electronics, movies, toys, books and music. Clickthebutton.com covers over 400 of the best-known online stores. Shoppers can also browse for products directly from the clickthebutton.com website. Now breathe easy and stop bookmarking various websites to find what you want. Let the websites-within-websites make your online world more enjoyable.

will be at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center on Sunday, 7 p.m. They will play both classical and American musical theater compositions. For tickets, call the box office at (631) 288-1500.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

Although boneless, skinless chicken breasts are the most expensive part of the chicken, they are the hardest to cook properly. They can easily be overcooked and dried out lacking the skin and bone for protection. One of the most popular ways to cook them is on the grill and we're still in prime barbecue time so here are some suggestions.

To prepare chicken breasts for grilling, remove the small fillets on the underside of each breast. This is easily done with your fingers as they naturally separate away from the underside. (Reserve them for stir-fries or your own chicken nuggets for the children.) Trim away and discard any excess fat, then with a small sharp knife, butterfly the thickest point at the top of each breast so that they cook evenly. Rinse and pat them dry with paper towels. Be sure to wash your hands thoroughly as well as any utensils that were used in preparation for cooking, then prepare a marinade or dry rub to boost their flavor.

All manner of marinades and spice rubs are available in the market place. Yet a few simple ingredients can be quickly tossed together, such as ginger, garlic and lime juice for a wet marinade or a dry rub consisting of herbs and spices for a spicy taste of the tropics.

Grilling time for boneless, skinless breasts is never more than 3-5 minutes a side over a hot grill. Last but not least, time them properly for smoky, tender and juicy results.

GRILLED CHICKEN BREASTS WITH GINGER AND LIME

A few simple ingredients and, voila - a delicious, quickly prepared dish.
Serves 4

4 large, boneless, skinless chicken breasts

Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
1-inch piece ginger, peeled and grated
1-2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 tablespoon fresh cilantro or thyme leaves
2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
2-3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

1. Trim away and discard any excess fat from the chicken breasts. Butterfly the thickest part of the breasts so that the thickness of the meat is evenly sized. Rinse and pat dry with paper towels. Sprinkle both sides of the breasts with salt and pepper and place in a shallow dish.

2. In a small bowl, combine ginger, garlic, cilantro or thyme and lime juice and stir to mix. Slowly add the oil in a thin, steady stream until thoroughly blended. Marinate for 20-30 minutes at room temperature or refrigerate, covered, for up to several hours.

3. Preheat a gas grill or grill over ashen gray coals for about 4 minutes per side or just until cooked through. Serve warm or at room temperature.

GRILLED CHICKEN BREASTS WITH TROPICAL SPICE RUB

An alternative to cooking the chicken breasts over hot coals is to cook them in a hot, ridged grill pan.

Serves 4

4 large, boneless, skinless chicken breasts
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves

1/2 teaspoon dry marjoram
1/2 teaspoon ground peppercorns
1/2 teaspoon coarse (kosher) salt
Dash cayenne
2 bay leaves, finely crushed

1. Trim away and discard any excess fat from the chicken breasts. Butterfly the thickest part of the breasts so that the thickness of the meat is evenly sized. Rinse and pat dry with paper towels.

2. In a small bowl, combine remaining ingredients and stir to mix. Rub equal amounts into the chicken. Marinate for 20-30 minutes at room temperature or refrigerate, covered, for up to several hours.

3. Preheat a gas grill or grill over ashen gray coals for about 4 minutes per side or until just cooked through. Serve warm or at room temperature.

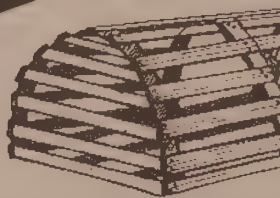

CHICKEN NUGGETS, HOME STYLE

1. Make your own chicken nuggets at home for the kids with the leftover chicken breast filets. Beat one egg white with a teaspoon of water. Cut the filets into one inch pieces and swirl through the beaten egg white. In a small bowl mix equal parts of bread crumbs and all purpose flour and season with salt and pepper.

2. Preheat oven to 375. With tongs, lift each nugget from the beaten egg white and dip into the bread crumb mixture to coat. Place one-layer deep on a cookie sheet and bake for 15-20 minutes until crisp and cooked through.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

OUTDOOR DINING AT GEORGICA GRILL East Hamptons Georgica Grill (329-9821) recently opened an outdoor patio where diners can now enjoy drinks and dinner. The patio area features a colorful "under sea" mural hand painted by Georgica Grill's own resident mixologist, Carol Schumacher.

THE BRICK IS BACK! The brick is back at The Laundry - red brick that is. Owner Stuart Kreisler has made a number of changes as The Laundry celebrates its 20th anniversary. One day last year, while Kreisler was out getting lunch, the exposed red brick was painted white by the general manager/chef, who is no longer in the employ of the company. "He liked white," stated Kreisler recently, "but everybody loved the regular brick." So what Kreisler has done is to have a crew work from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the dining room each day removing the paint and thus restoring the original look. In addition, Kreisler has brought back Bill Bonbrest Jr. and executive chef Andrew Engle. The entire retransformation of the dining room should be accomplished soon.

CHARDONNAY CLASSIC On Saturday, August 5, The Lenz Winery in Peconic will host a "Chardonnay Classic." The event, held under a tent, will take place from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Features of the evening include: seventy-five Chardonnays from around the world, light finger foods, wine prizes and live music by Jim Turner. Tickets are $35 at the door or may be reserved by calling 1-800-974-9899.

CAFÉ AMICI'S AUGUST PRIX FIXE On Tuesday evenings in August, Café Amici (283-3111) in Southampton offers a three-course prix fixe for $25 (tax and gratuity not included). Café Amici features progressive Italian continental cuisine using fresh local seafood and produce. They also offer steaks, chops, pasta specialties and outdoor dining.

CHEF SPOTLIGHT Cybele Cuzon - Cerulean Restaurant. A native of San Francisco, Cybele Cuzon grew up in an environment that celebrates diverse culture and cuisine. She is self-taught and has been cooking for as long as she can remember. She started her professional culinary career in France, which then took her to St. Barths as a private chef for the island's exclusive villas. Her talent won her the position of Executive Chef at Cerulean Villa in Anguilla. Chef Cuzon will spend the summer season showcasing her unique creations at Cerulean Restaurant in East Hampton. Erik Nodeland red/bar brasserie. A C.I.A. graduate, Chef Nodeland is a Long Island native who's honed his skills in restaurants from New York to Arizona. Nodeland was the chef de cuisine at the highly regarded Karen Lee's in Bridgehampton for three years. He then assumed chef responsibilities at red/bar brasserie in Southampton in 1998. red/bar quickly won high acclaim and raves due largely to Nodeland's quality French-inspired American cuisine and smart menu. Nodeland is known for his devotion to his craft. By his own admission he, "eats, sleeps and breaths cooking."

POPULAR LOBSTER NIGHT EXPANDS Farmhouse restaurant chef Fredric Kieffer has expanded Lobster Night at the popular East Hampton eatery.

Lobster night is every Wednesday. Added to the traditional Lobster Night is stuffed twin lobster and lobster bisque, "a meal in itself," according to recent reports from customers. In addition, grilled twin lobsters have been added as an option to the classic twin steamed lobster dinner. Lobster "flambe" with pasta and a one and a half pound traditional lobster feast round out the lobster expansion. Most lobster dinners include local corn on the cob, home made potato salad and cole slaw. Wednesday Lobster Night continues through September 20. Call 324-8585 for reservations.

Henry's

French Inspired American Cuisine

The Reviews are in...

The New York Times Joanne Starkey:

"Excellent...the food at Henry's shouts "exciting" and clients reply "delicious." The sweet staff says, "welcome" not just when dinners arrive but throughout the meal."

Newsday's Peter M. Giannotti:

"THE GOOD "NEW" SUMMERTIME.

The liveliest spot to open in Bridgehampton in years."

Hamptons Country Magazine's Richard Lourie:

"Henry's is deservedly THE HIT OF THE SEASON. It has raised the standard of cuisine in the Hamptons so high that some other restaurateurs and chefs now gulp nervously at the mere mention of its name."

DUNE ROAD AT THE SHINNECOCK INLET • HAMPTON BAYS

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Just a stone's throw over the ocean dunes, a very special dining experience awaits you, located on the northwest corner of the Shinnecock Inlet. Upon entering Oakland's Restaurant, we had the choice of indoor or outdoor seating; we chose the latter, and were immediately captivated by the scene. If you're looking for the best summer atmosphere with eye-popping water views, there isn't a spot anywhere from Westhampton to East Hampton that can compare.

Our gracious waitress, Sarah, handed the menus to my husband, Bruce and myself, and made us feel as comfortable as if we were on our own backyard deck. Some diners even kicked off their shoes and danced, to the upbeat sounds of a live band, as they played Caribbean melodies. Young mothers were spinning their little girls in circles, as their summer dresses twirled around them in the carefree summer breeze.

As your eye sweeps the panoramic seascape, it takes numerous snapshot images: a silhouette of a fisherman on the rocks, the wingspan of a hovering seagull, the sunset behind the Ponquogue bridge. It's breathtaking.

I almost forgot that I had come there to eat, with my mouth still agape at the scenery. What a treat to sample the seafood specialties of Chef de Cuisine, John Hill, whose melange of hors d'oeuvres were as plentiful as the views. Aside from the kitchen's authenticity of shrimp tempura and crab cakes, we over-indulged ourselves on other mouth-watering samples. The tuna tartare, which you could cut with your fork, was on top of a mixture of wakame seaweed, tobikko wasabi, caviar, wonton chips and wasabi cucumber dressing.

The salads were of sizable portions. While Bruce chose Arugula with toasted walnuts, warm brie cheese and raspberry vinaigrette, I decided on the organic Spinach, topped with portobello mushrooms, "the creamiest" goat cheese and apple smoked bacon vinaigrette.

As we were becoming satiated with the pleasures of our edible starters, our first-class main course was placed before us, and was fit for a king and queen. Bruce and I just looked at one another as if, "there's no way we can eat this, too." Yet, we managed, with a big smile. Bruce's dish was pan-seared striped bass served in an exotic mushroom broth (lobster-mushrooms, chanterell mushrooms and oysters) topped with a caramelized tomato, garlic, and herbed jam. And my dish stands apart from any other grouper I've ever had, it was prepared with blackberry habanero butter sauce that piqued a second craving I didn't think I had in me. We almost passed on dessert, until Sarah pointed out, with a gleam in her eye, that all the desserts are made on the premises.

The tough part was to pick from the tray that carried an exquisite grouping of the tempting teasers. But we settled on two: the warm apple crisp a la mode and the peanut butter napoleon on a cookie shell. I suppose the chocolate covered strawberries will have to wait until our next visit.

As we sat there, we had time to reflect on what made this establishment so unique: it offers gourmet food in an alfresco ambiance that none can surpass in the Hamptons.

The Hampton Bays business is family-run, started by the father, Wally Oakland nine years ago. Since Wally passed on shortly after the new venture started, his wife, Joyce carried on; their son, Doug manages it, with his wife, Christine; and the chef, is brother-in-law, John Hill. The blending of this union comes off as successfully as the mixture of food. Whether you come for lunch, starting at 12 noon or dinner 5 p.m. thru 11p.m., seven days a week, in season (Labor Day thru Columbus Day), or for the Friday 5-7 p.m. buffet and happy hour, you will not be disappointed. Or come to enjoy the live music Friday thru Monday, and remember Raggae on Sunday during brunch. I guarantee you will have a casual fun in a relaxed surrounding, with amicable service.

As we drove home in the dark in the isolation of Dune Road, we played the music very loud, since no one was around to hear it. We took deep breaths of sea air. It was a great night to emulate.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Cerulean Restaurant

143 Main St. at the 1770 House, East Hampton
329-5550

After hearing rave reviews, we just had to experience Cerulean Restaurant, East Hampton's newest upscale dining destination, for ourselves. We were delighted by the intimate, forty seat eatery which opened in June with a menu featuring "upscale exotic fare from the sea" prepared by executive chef Cybele Cuzon. The restaurant, which you've surely heard of by now, is located in the historic 1770 House on Main Street. Wendy Wachtel and Alfredo Merat of Overseas Connection Villas in Sag Harbor are the owners. East End resident Audrey Roseman is also a part-owner in the venture as is chef Cuzon, a San Francisco native who is also the chef at Cerulean Villa in Anguilla, a luxury villa rental property managed by Wachtel and Merat. But you already knew that right?

Wachtel and Cerulean Villa designer, Laurie Weltz, have transformed the dining room at the 1770 House into a space that evokes an elegant Caribbean stateroom. White walls, wood floors, rustic ceiling beams, sisal rugs and understated artwork lend the room an atmosphere of refined tranquility. Delicate glass bowls with floating candles and flowers are set on crisp white table linens. No detail is overlooked; even the Venetian glass platterware in opalescent hues of azure blue and sunny yellow complement the island ambiance. We certainly felt like island royalty ourselves when we took our seats at the smartly set table in straight-backed, woven wicker chairs with comfortable area, colored cushions. It's as pleasing a dining room as you'll find on the East End.

Manager Haroun Khalek, who oversees the dining room with professionalism and flair, greeted us. Haroun took our drink order and presented us with the evening's menu, explaining that the chef's selections vary daily to reflect the availability of the freshest seafood. The wine list looked great, but we opted for the jasmine iced tea-unique, original and, yes, I had another.

Cuzon's menu features seafood and offers a unique marriage of eclectic and vibrant flavors with tropical Asian undertones. For appetizers, we selected a chilled asparagus soup with creme fraiche; soy-curd tuna with sesame French beans, orange confit and a ginger emulsion; and the house-made fettuccine with slow roasted tomatoes, butternut squash, fennel and pinenuts. The delicately chilled asparagus soup was a refreshing starter for a warm summer evening. The grade-A sashimi style tuna was the best I've tasted and beautifully presented. The house-made fettuccine was perfectly cooked and robust with flavor. Other choices offered that evening were little neck clam ceviche served on the half shell and chilled squid salad with lemongrass dressing and herb salad.

For our main courses, we chose the grilled sea scallops with potato puree, sautéed shiitake mushrooms and pea shoots; crisped skin striped bass with oyster mushrooms, baby bok choy and somen noodles; and the grilled lamb cutlets with warm spring vegetable salad and salsa verde. The large sea scallops, sitting atop a smooth and flavorful sweet potato puree are a consummate summer meal. The striped bass was deftly prepared with deliciously crispy skin. As our one selection of land fare, the expertly grilled lamb cutlets were a hearty choice, pleasantly accompanied by the fresh salsa verde. All portions were generous and attractively presented.

Break your diet here because desserts at Cerulean are a real treat and as inventive and fresh as the main offerings. We finished our meal with the chocolate panna cotta with banana brulee and caramel, a cheesecake tart with fresh strawberries and vanilla Grand Marnier glaze and a bowl of house made raspberry sorbet. All were perfect and a fitting end to an exquisite meal. Appetizers range in price from $9 to $14; entrees from $24 to $36 and desserts are in the $10 range. Cerulean is open after 2 p.m. American Express, Mastercard and Visa are accepted. So pick up the phone already!

Four star dining has come to Montauk. It can be found at the Blue Water Bistro. The address is 90 Second House Road. The phone number is 668-3058.

I am telling you this right up front because I want you to go to your phone right now and call for a reservation. I want you to do this immediately. I'm not kidding. Right now.

Gene and I went there Saturday night. And if it is possible, we will go again next Saturday night. This gem of a restaurant opened about two months ago. The chef/owners are new to the East End. Andre Santelli was the chef at Sette Moma in the Museum of Modern Art. And Andrew Margiotta joins us from The Four Seasons in Milan. The food was so good I must also mention the sous chef, Anthony Cirino, from Hawthorne Lane, San Francisco. Michael, our most professional waiters', expertise was invaluable in guiding us through the very tempting items presented. The menu was short. My favorite menus are short. No one cooks everything well. I appreciate a chef that puts his best foot forward and ignores the other foot. The chef/ owners of Blue Water Bistro ignore anything that isn't perfect. We started with a sampling of their best appetizers. We tried the tuna spring roll, lightly marinated and served with a sesame and soy vinaigrette. The bistro salad was a mix of organic greens with blue cheese, shaved almonds and pear in a sherry wine vinaigrette. We sampled the fried calamari tossed with a spicy roasted tomato oil. Everything was prepared and presented beautifully. But the stand out was the crab cake with red pepper steak. Both of us were very pleased and neither of us was sharing. Michael advised me that many customers have come back two and three times for the flounder. I know why. It was flaky and moist with a wonderful remoulade sauce. When I looked up from dinner, I noticed Gene's plate was cleaned. He said to tell you the steak was perfectly cooked, medium rare.

Finally, the dessert sampler was brought out. I think it's wonderful that they didn't make me choose. But as you will probably have to exercise some restraint and make a decision, I would recommend the flourless chocolate torte, served warm with raspberry coulis and vanilla sauce layered with sliced strawberries and vanilla scented whipped cream. The prices are all reasonable. The appetizers range from $7.

to $10 for a shrimp cocktail. The entrees start at $15 for pasta and top out at $24 for the eighteen ounce steak. All deserts are $6.

I ran into my old friend Sandy at the restaurant that evening. She was out for the weekend from Huntington. I asked her how she heard about the Blue Water Bistro. She told me word of mouth. You have heard it from me. This is not just a good restaurant this is an excellent restaurant. So please, go to the phone and make your dinner reservations now.

WATERMELON

Watermelon, the behemoth of summer fruits, is big on nutrition, too. So big, the American Heart Association awarded it their heart-check mark of approval. At just forty-five calories per up, it's a natural diuretic, which makes it the perfect snack for dieters.

In addition to being fat and cholesterol free, a good source of potassium and vitamins A and C, watermelon contains an important antioxidant, lycopene. Lycopene, the same pigment that gives tomatoes and other red fruits their color, is a member of the carotenoid category of antioxidants. Carotenoids which have been proven to reduce the build-up of plaque in the arteries, also have anti-cancer benefits.

Carotenoids function to neutralize harmful, unpaired oxygen molecules that recklessly bounce around, damaging cells, in their frenzy for a mate.

Lycopene must be obtained through the diet because the body doesn't produce it naturally. Watermelon, as well as tomatoes, are two of the best sources of lycopene. Although you may need a forklift to get one into your car, buy a whole watermelon anyway. A cool slice of juicy watermelon on a summer day is what food memories are made of.

Most people think of the seeds as a nuisance or, at best, as an excuse to have a watermelon seed spitting competition. According to Betty Fussell's book, "Food in Good Season", you should keep the seeds because they can be toasted and consumed as a snack, just as the American Indians did. She suggests that you wash them, if necessary, blot them dry with paper towel then toast them for 3-5 minutes, over low heat in an ungreased skillet. Add some salt while they are still hot.

Today's seedless varieties make it easy to be inventive and include watermelon in everything from soup to dessert. Take your cue from the Italians. Their definitive recipe for the pairing of sweet and savory, prociutto and melon, sets the stage for serving watermelon with

Healthy Eating For Busy People

Healthy Eating For Busy People is a weekly planner that provides its users with helpful guidelines for making small alterations in health and exercise that add up to a major positive lifestyle change. Medical professionals have known for years that a healthy diet and a moderate amount of exercise are the key to increasing energy and preventing certain types of diseases. Healthy Eating For Busy People assists the time-challenged individual in making the often overwhelming, but necessary lifestyle changes.

Healthy Eating For Busy People was created for the busy person who is still trying to stay healthy," says creator David Levitch. "Each week a simple step is given to help you change the way you eat. You will also begin a basic exercise program. Helpful hints are included to guide you along the way."

Most attractive to the planner is the fact that it is not a diet, but a change in the way foods are chosen and eaten. Healthy Eating For Busy People also eases the user into an exercise program over the course of the year. It is especially practical for the busy individual because it can also be used to keep appointments, plan meetings, or jot down notes.

David Levitch is a registered dietitian with diversified experience in the field of food and nutrition. Along with working at one of the highest acuity level hospitals in America, he has also served as the Director of Food and Nutrition Services at a long-term, acute care hospital.

Aero Bo Kick: The Best Workout You'll Ever Try

Unless you've been living under a rock for the past year you should be aware of the newest craze in fitness. It's martial arts aerobics. Many names are used to describe this form of exercise. Kardio Kickbox, Aero Bo Kick, and Tae Bo, created by Billy Blanks, is of course the most popular of them all. With a weekly budget of two million dollars to advertise on every television station, it comes as no surprise that Tae Bo has become the generic term for this type of workout. While most programs are similar in technique, they vary only according to the experience and personality of the instructor.

Its popularity is due to the fact that you can burn 800-1000 calories per workout, you are learning authentic martial arts techniques without the rigid traditional protocol, and last but not least, it is challenging and fun. Each workout is packed with kicking and punching combinations set to uplifting music that drives you from start to finish. There is no heavy-duty choreography to follow which makes it easy to concentrate on getting a good workout and having fun instead of focusing on a complicated routine. The energy in the studio quickly heats up and before you know it you're sweating and having the time of your life. The pace of the class varies from instructor to instructor but it is always challenging for the beginner as well as the more accomplished athlete.

It is crucial that you learn the basics of throwing correct punches and kicks in order to get the best results from each workout as well as protect yourself from injuries. It is important that your instructor have full knowledge of the correct mechanics of kicking and punching and also is able to communicate these basics clearly. Beware, there are many people who claim to know these basics, but don't be fooled by the ex-cheerleader who has the ability to kick higher than you can. Because you are learning legitimate martial arts techniques that can be used to defend yourself, it is recommended that your instructor be one of the following: a martial artist, or an aerobic instructor certified by a reputable boxer, kickboxer or martial arts instructor.

The added benefit of this workout is the confidence it instills in each participant. Not only is this a great cardio workout, but it is a total body-sculpting regime. The various knee strikes, punches, and kicks not only work your arms, shoulders, legs and glutes, but your stomach and oblique area benefits as well.

So if you're looking for a total body workout that will improve speed, endurance, flexibility, balance, strength, then martial arts aerobics by any name is the workout for you.

— Tony Morrison

Tony Morrison is the creator of Aero Bo Kick and has an extensive martial arts career that includes eight years of training with Billy Blanks the creator of the popular Tae Bo. He is the founder and owner of Top Gun Martial Arts Academy with two locations in New York. He teaches classes in New York and the Hamptons and is available for personal training instruction at 212-420-5090 or Aerokick@aol.com a variety of cheeses, such as Fontina, Swiss or Stilton. Puree watermelon in a blender with yogurt, a few ice cubes and some sugar for a smoothie or hollow it out and have fun sculpting the rind into a fanciful bowl for fruit salad. The National Watermelon Promotion Board has a website: www.watermelon.org with pictures and suggestions for carving.

ARUGULA AND MELON SALAD

- 2 large bunches of arugula, cut up
- 2 cups of seedless melon, cubed
- 1/4 c. oil

- 3 T. freshly squeezed lime juice
- 1/4 t. cumin
- 1/2 t. sugar

Whisk the oil, lime juice, cumin and sugar together for the dressing. Combine the arugula with the watermelon and pour dressing over it.

WATERMELON SORBET

- 1 watermelon, about 2 1/2 lbs.
- 3/4 c. sugar

- Juice of 1 lemon
- 3/4 c. water

Scoop the flesh from the watermelon and puree in blender together with the lemon juice.

Make a sugar syrup by combining the sugar and water and heating over a low flame until dissolved. Allow the syrup to cool and then add to the watermelon puree. Pour into an ice cream maker or, if you prefer, put into a suitable dish and freeze for 4 hours, whisking the mixture at half hour intervals. —Kathy Baruffi

DISCUS DENTAL

Say Good-bye to Starvation Diets Forever...

NEW SUPER PILL GUARANTEES SAFE, RAPID WEIGHT LOSS OR YOUR MONEY BACK!

Las Vegas, NV- Clinical research of a plant compound called Amorphophallus Konjac, derived from the roots of yam plants native to Asia, is being heralded as a "life saver" for the up to 50 million people who suffer from obesity in the U.S. And word is spreading rapidly throughout the 150 million Americans who go on weight reduction diets each year about the dramatic weight loss results from a product called FatStopper 2000, which contains this crucial ingredient.

CONTROLS "CRUCIAL FACTOR OF APPETITE"

According to Japanese medical doctor, Mutsuhiko Kuroki, "Losing weight with Amorphophallus Konjac (the active ingredient in FatStopper 2000) does not mean ingesting Amorphophallus Konjac into the body and letting it make you thinner in some mysterious way. Rather, [it] is not digested by the body but acts to help you reduce as it passes through the digestive tract. In effect, Amorphophallus Konjac helps you reduce by controlling that crucial factor of appetite and by working upon the digestive tract and its contents to promote improved metabolism and thus to speed the burning of excess fat."

- Trim inches off your waistline
- Reduce your hips by inches.
- Slim your thighs inches in 8 weeks.
- Flatten your stomach.
- Wear clothes long ago lost in your closet.
- Enjoy a totally new appearance.
- Regain a new and vibrant sex appeal.

Considering the latest dieting statistics, which indicate that the average diet lasts only 72 hours because of hunger and frustration, it's no wonder that FatStopper 2000, with its all-natural active ingredient, is taking the diet industry by storm! With over 60 million Americans alone who suffer from high blood pressure due to excess weight, this new product is offering hope, help and dramatic results.

YOU EAT AS YOU NORMALLY WOULD AND STILL LOSE WEIGHT!

Clearly, the hardest thing you are ever told to do is change your eating habits. Because food not only nourishes your body, but also your emotional well being, changing what you eat can be almost impossible. The psychological stress imposed upon a person by altering the way he or she eats is usually enough to sabotage a diet. That's why the huge success rate attributed to FatStopper 2000 can be easily explained. Because the product causes a feeling of fullness, you eat less. You don't feel like you're on a diet because you're not! You're simply choosing to eat less because you don't want more.

SAFELY FLUSHES FATS AND CALORIES RIGHT OUT OF YOUR BODY!

But no matter what you eat the concentrated form of Amorphophallus Konjac found in FatStopper 2000 forms a non-digestible and harmless gel-like coating around food particles, causing the food to be digested at a slower rate. The gel slows the action of digestive enzymes to release sugars and fats at an even rate, causing excess fats and calories to be flushed right out of your body!

That's right! So whether french fries are your favorite comfort food, or your life just isn't worth living without a bowl of ice cream-don't worry! The properties of FatStopper 2000 allow you to eat these whenever you like and still lose weight!

There are no special foods to buy, no calories to count, no dangerous drugs to take-and absolutely NO side effects! None!

You merely take FatStopper 2000 as directed-that's it! Within days you'll see noticeable results. And in clinical studies, some subjects lost up to 24 pounds in the first month and 48 by the second month! Remarkable!

If you're able to exercise moderately, that's great. If you're not there yet - that's fine too-you'll still lose the weight. Once you lose enough weight to feel comfortable walking or doing some other light exercise, you'll speed up your metabolism even further and tone up those sagging muscles. Get ready to look and feel healthier and more fit than you ever have!

INTENSIVE RESEARCH LEADS TO 6 PATENTS IN 5 COUNTRIES!

As an informed consumer you'll be relieved to know that the ingredient in the FatStopper 2000 formula has been awarded not one, but TWO United States Patents: the first one for its effectiveness as a weight loss product, and the second for its ability to reduce harmful cholesterol levels! And, the U.S. is not alone in its embrace of this product. In fact, Japan, France, Germany and The United Kingdom have all awarded the FatStopper 2000 formula patents in their countries as well!

Clinical studies abound on Amorphophallus Konjac and have been conducted in some of the world's leading medical schools and universities. And the results of these intensive studies have been published throughout the world in major medical journals.

CAUTION: YOU MIGHT LOSE TOO MUCH WEIGHT!

You know the old saying about never being too rich or too thin. Given the potency of FatStopper 2000 to effectively help eliminate years of fatty deposits from your body while not causing you any side effects, you may be tempted to overdo it. Don't allow yourself to become too thin! You may need to regulate your pill intake, skipping a pill occasionally or even skipping an entire day or two. Have a weight loss goal in mind and try to stick to it.

- ✓ LOSE up to 9 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE.
- ✓ LOSE up to 10 INCHES OFF YOUR HIPS.
- ✓ LOSE up to 7 INCHES OFF YOUR THIGHS.
- ✓ LOSE up to 7 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH.

COMPANY GUARANTEES CONSUMERS MUST BE ENTIRELY SATISFIED

Swiss Labs 2000 is honored to be the only company in the United States to be authorized to sell FatStopper 2000. They have examined and collected "mountains" of clinical data regarding Amorphophallus Konjac and its startling weight loss results, and they are eager to alleviate any doubt about their product by offering it entirely risk-free!

Place your order NOW, and then you will have 30 full days from invoice to test FatStopper 2000 for yourself. With the Swiss Labs 2000 30-day money-back guarantee, it's like trying, not buying. You MUST be completely satisfied with the new, thinner you, or you can simply return the unused portion of your shipment for a full refund of your purchase price.

Best of all... ordering the FatStopper 2000 program is simple, fast and reliable! Simply call Toll Free 1-800-790-2687 and ask for Operator 917B and order with your MasterCard or Visa. If you want to order by mail, just write your name and Without changing the way they eat, and by simply adding the FatStopper 2000 ingredient to their normal meals, clinical studies of both men and women revealed in U.S. Patent #3,973,008 showed individual weight losses of as much as 28.65 pounds in 4 weeks- and as much as 48.50 pounds in 8 weeks: the average weight loss for all participants in that same time period was 33.9 pounds.

"I lost 49 pounds in just 8 1/2 weeks!"

Without changing the way she ate, Tanna lost 49 lbs. in a mere 8 1/2 weeks! On Sept 10th she weighed 165 lbs. And by the 12th of November her weight was 116!

"I cannot stand dieting. To me, giving up the foods I love to eat could be worse than being fat. FatStopper 2000 was a real life saver! I lost 49 pounds in just 8 1/2 weeks and NEVER felt like I was on a diet. I've never looked or felt better, I know I am much healthier too! My friends are all green with envy!" The Maidstone Arms

One of the most beautifully appointed historic inns of the Hamptons, the Maidstone Arms Inn and Restaurant, overlooks East Hampton's lyrically landscaped Town Pond, the Village Green, and the old East Hampton Town Cemetery.

Like so many classic buildings located in the National Historic District of East Hampton, the Maidstone Arms was originally built as a private home during the late 1600's. Its earliest owner was the Bond family, whose name did not continue to be seen very long in the Hamptons area.

Thomas Osborne owned it in 1668 and the Osborne family continued to own the property and to take in boarders until 1924 when real estate agent B. M. Osborne retired and the Hampton Hotel Corporation was formed and took over the two buildings on the property.

Both the Maidstone Inn and the Old Osborne House were turned into inns and the Osborne House was renamed the Maidstone Arms.

Ralph C. Frood was the manager of both hotels until the Maidstone Inn was destroyed by fire during the winter of 1935 and he was left with only the Maidstone Arms.

Farming had been the main livelihood of the early residents and the Osbornes were tanners and promoters for East Hampton in the offshore whaling companies of East Hampton and Southampton in 1667. Descendants of the early Osbornes were among the few last whalers in the area and Oliver S. Osborn led the crew that captured the last white whale off Wainscott in 1907.

Before East Hampton acquired its current name, it was called Maidstone. A small colony of settlers from Massachusetts, who had ties to English settlers in Connecticut, had negotiated a land use agreement with the peace-loving Montaukett Indians and founded the Town of East Hampton in 1648.

When East Hampton still bore the name Maidstone it was attracting a constant flow of settlers and by 1651, the town had grown so that the original settlers were granted a town charter under the new name of East Hampton.

Located in what was once the downtown area of East Hampton, this grand dame of historic inns was converted into a hotel during the 1870s.

In 1992 the Maidstone Arms was purchased by architect, Coke Anne Saunders, who restored it without altering its original outer appearance.

The present day inn, with its crisp-looking blue shutters and white shingles, has sixteen guest rooms, a duplex cottage suite and two additional cottages.

The restaurant is open for lunch as well as for dinner and ranks high among the most charming, intimate and romantic atmospheric restaurants that capture the historic country elegance of the gracious bygone Hamptons.

The various dining rooms feature unusual intimate table settings, complete with over-stuffed chairs at a table for two.

Plaid-upholstered chairs at cozy game tables equipped with checkers and various parlor games, present an inviting common area in The Water Room, whose many porch windows face Town Pond and the Village Green.

The Water Room also contains a woodstove, prints of hunting and fishing scenes and antique fishing gear that evokes the cozy atmosphere of early country living.

This glass enclosed porch, filled with gracious white wicker furniture, is a lovely setting for winter viewing of family ice skating scenes on the park-framed pond.

The Water Room is open to the public and features Todd Michaels at the piano playing music from the 20s and 50s on Saturday nights from 7:30-11:30 p.m. The cheerful staff seems genuinely friendly, and the inn radiates a warm and charming spirit reminiscent of its glorious past.

Furniture Art At Pritan And Eames

The Furniture Art of Judy Kensley McKie opens at PRITAM & EAMES in East Hampton on Friday, August 11 and will be on view through September 18, 2000. Michael Monroe, Chief Curator Emeritus of Renwick Gallery at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, DC, has known Judy McKie for more than twenty years and says of her unique design style: "Working as an animalier, McKie has distilled nature's infinite beauty and wisdom into a dense, deeply personal iconography. Traversing the gap that separates art from furniture, Judy McKie's work evokes a magical world in which fantasy and reality, man and animal, form and function, cease to exist in alienated realms."

For her sixth solo exhibition at PRITAM & EAMES, Judy McKie has created thirteen pieces of furniture in marble, bronze, and wood, as well as her first piece of jewelry, the Gold Fish bracelet. Mr. Monroe finds that "McKie favors expressions of gentle acuity, poignancy, and sensibility which are grounded in a hypersensitive understanding of nature. Her art's appeal lies in its mysterious sense of self-containment and intimacy."

"For over thirty years, McKie has used animal, bird, and fish imagery, as well as abstract patterns, to create a body of work that is distinctly hers," according to her partner Warren Johnson. McKie's Dove Bench, carved from Italian Botticino marble, exemplifies her distinctive, spare, and elegant style. It is "the purity of the white marble and the spread of the dove's sweeping wings that imply, respectively, a translucent lightness and a link with the sky," Monroe observes.

Another example of the timeless simplicity and reductionist perfection in McKie's work is the bronze and glass Lynx Desk. "Standing fully erect, the animals are empowered with enigmatic beauty, serene dignity, and a delicacy that belies their internal power and feeling for the protective power of nature," Monroe states.

Judy McKie was born in Boston, Massachusetts and studied at the Rhode Island School of Design. There she earned a BFA in painting after spending a year in Rome, Italy, as part of the school's European Honors Program. In 1998, she was made a Fellow of the American Craft Council and, in 1979 and 1982, she was awarded Craftsman Fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts, a Massachusetts Artists Foundation Fellowship in 1980, and a Louis Comfort Tiffany Foundation Award in 1989.

Her work is part of numerous private and museum collections including the ARC Union, Paris, France; the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, MA; Fine Arts Museum of San Francisco, CA; Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design, RI; Toledo Art Museum, OH; Frederick R. Weisman Art Foundation, Los Angeles, CA; Philadelphia Museum of Art, PA; Renwick Gallery, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC; Yale University Art Gallery, CT; Vice President's Residence, Washington, DC; Albuquerque Museum of Art, NM; and, the American Craft Museum, NY.

Judy McKie will be at PRITAM & EAMES for the opening of her exhibition on Friday, August 11, from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. The gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. The gallery is closed on Wednesday.

energy," Monroe notes. "The Sea Gull Chair resists the earthbound limitations of ordinary chairs. While the strength of the sculpture conveys vertical lift, the seat itself creates the protective form of a nest. A pure form that embraces the sitter evidences McKie's positive

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

The Farmers Market Federation of New York has proudly announced August 6th through the 12th as Farmer's Market Week, as sponsored by New York State Senator Nancy Larraine Hoffmann and adopted by the NYS Senate. This honor shows that the Empire State recognizes the value of farmers markets to our state's economy, to the agricultural community, and to our residents. Farmers markets provide an important avenue for fresh, wholesome fruits, vegetables and other produce to communities across the state. They also aid small family farms by giving them the opportunity to sell their products directly to consumers and, hopefully, increase their profit share.

Here on the East End, farmers markets have been discussed but have not yet taken off, except for the one in downtown Riverhead. In fact, Southampton Town includes discussion of this subject in the agricultural section of the Master Plan update. We have access to a great number of farmer owned and operated farm stands, where consumers can buy not only fruits and vegetables, but baked goods, jams and jellies, maple syrup, flowers, bedding plants, and much more as well. Because we live in "farm country" the farmers market concept is not necessary as compared to towns "up-island". As you have heard many times, the best way to help keep farming and farmlands preserved is to buy "Grown on Long Island" products whenever possible.

While I'm writing about markets, just to let you know, we held the organizational meeting of the statutorily sanctioned Long Island Farm Market Authority last week at the Suffolk County Executive's office in Hauppauge. County Executive Bob Gaffney and New York State Senator Ken LaValle have been tremendous supporters of Long Island farmers and our efforts to better market our products. Over the next year, the Long Island Farm Market Authority will study and then implement the creation of a regional market that will allow our citizens more opportunities to purchase Long Island grown products and give our growers a better profit margin. We are hopeful that this will be a strong step forward on the road to preserving our farmers, farmland and our agricultural heritage.

Joseph Gergela III is executive director of Long Island Farm Bureau.

POLICE BLOTTER

Southampton Village Police impounded a car that was left at the Suffolk County National Bank on North Sea Road for a week. Inside they found a counterfeit resident alien card with the name and photo of a Franco C. Melesio, 29, of Longwood Florida. When Mr. Melesio tried to claim his vehicle, he was arrested and charged with three counts of possession of a forged instrument.

Three Hampton Bays women were picked up by Southampton Village Police for allegedly souvenir shopping where they shouldn't have been. Faye A. Hilbert, 20, Shannon P. Maddock, 19, and Jennifer B. Morgan, 22, were charged with criminal mischief and attempted petit larceny for allegedly trying to steal a license plate from a parked car on O'Connell Drive. The tag taking trio were released on their own recognizance.

A Sag Harbor woman was dropping off a friend in Bridgehampton when two men approached her and asked to borrow the kayak on the roof of her car. She tried to drive away, but the men were persistent and attempted to cut the straps holding the boat to the roof. Unable to commandeer the craft, they punched out the rear window of her car instead.

Also in Bridgehampton, a Manhattan man was sleeping in his van last Sunday morning parked off of the Bridgehampton-Sag Harbor Turnpike. While he slept, someone reached through the window and lifted his wallet from his front pocket. According to the man in the van, $1,000 was in the wallet.

In East Hampton, on Old Orchard Lane, another case of stolen shrubbery and taken trees was reported. Six trees and several bushes were plucked by the wily woodsman.

A short distance away, in the Northwest Woods, a Landfall Road resident reported that he too fell victim to a felonious flora thief. This time, five large plants valued at $150 were snatched.

A group of mischievous youths are suspected of moving traffic cones from Lions Field in Montauk, out into Edgemere Road. The cones confused motorists, but no tragedies were reported. Police also found a damaged sign in the park.

A Springs man returned to his Three Mile Harbor domicile to find that somebody had been sleeping in his bed and watching his television. There was no word on whether anybody had been eating his porridge. The same man has had several similar experiences over the past two weeks.

DAN'S MEETS THE CHALLENGE

Dear Dan,

I am writing to thank you for your help with THE NEW YORK TO THE HAMPTONS CHALLENGE 2000. Dan's Papers sponsorship made a great difference. The Challenge went very well. It was a hot day but the riders had a good time and arrived safely at Southampton College where they were greeted by cool breezes and cheering friends. The contributions are still coming in and to date we have raised $190,000 for the fight against Hate Crimes and AIDS. At this rate we will exceed last years total.

Dan, I would like to congratulate you on your fortieth anniversary of Dan's Papers. I bet it is hard to believe that forty years have gone by. But you have created during this time a wonderful East End tradition which has enriched the lives of many people. LIAAC, along with many other agencies, is in your debt. We wish you many more years of good fortune, good health and good works.

Please find enclosed T-shirts and photos of the event. Thank you again for your generous support. I will keep you updated as we plan for Challenge 2001.

Sincerely,
John Haigney

FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY FUN

Dear Cathie,

Woow—eeee....What a party! We had more fun last Saturday night than should be legal!

Actually, we arrived at the party planning to leave early, as we had company staying at our home that evening, and we didn't want to leave them too long. But we were having such a blast, we said, "The heck with the company, we're having too much fun". And we stayed for the whole shebang.

Your guests, the band, the food, the jugglers, the fortune-tellers, the clowns on stilts and, most of all, you and our beloved honoree made this an evening we'll never forget.

Cathie, you threw such a successful party, and we feel honored that you and Dan included us in your delightful circle of friends. Here it is Thursday, and Pauline and I are still feeling the afterglow of the wonderful time we had.

Dan's 40th turned out to be one amazing year, and you capped it off with the ultimate blow-out Hampton's party. Congratulations...and thanks again.

Warmest wishes,

Hampton Comedy Festival 2000

The first annual Hamptons Comedy Festival kicks off this year from August 17-20, 2000. The Hamptons Comedy Festival is a four-day extravaganza featuring stand-up comedy showcases, a comedy film program, workshops, and parties at high-profile venues all over the Hamptons. The five venues are the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center, The Tavern in Southampton, Wild Rose Café in Bridgehampton, Stephen Talkhouse in Amagansett, and Mary Jane's in East Hampton.

The must-read of the Hamptons with a 71,000 circulation in the Hamptons and Manhattan - Dan's Papers - has come aboard to support this magnificent festival.

The mission of the Hamptons Comedy Festival is to do something good while doing something fun. A portion of the Festival's proceeds will go to the Breast Cancer and Prostate Cancer Research Funds at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

Some of the country's funniest comics will bring laughter to the Hamptons. Judy Gold, from her award-winning HBO Special and Hollywood Squares; DC Benny, a stand-out in this year's comedy festival in Aspen; Cory Kahaney performs her hysterical one-woman show, Having it All and Other Myths; you may also recognize her from NBC's Later; Louis Ramey - he won the Best Male Stand-Up in Aspen in 1999; Karen Bergreen, she's a former lawyer who decided the law wasn't funny. But she is. You may remember her from a recent appearance on Law & Order; Eddie Brill, known as the Dean of Stand-Up Comedy in some circles. He makes Dave Letterman laugh as the emcee of The Late Show with Dave Letterman; Todd Barry, fresh from his one-man show Icky in New York. You don't want to miss this talented performer, who you may have seen on Late Night with Conan O'Brien; and, more! The best of New York City's comedy club scene heads to the Hamptons for the comedy festival. You don't want to miss it!

Each night of the Festival, comics, industry and special guests are invited to celebrate the first annual Hamptons Comedy Festival. On Thursday and Friday nights, the party kicks off at 10 p.m. at The Tavern in Southampton. And the Festival closing party and awards presentation takes place Saturday, August 19 at 10 p.m. at Mary Jane's Restaurant in East Hampton. There will be live music and lots of comedy.

For ticket reservations and information, please go to www.hamptonscomedyfestival.com or call 212-396-2015.

YOU'RE PAYING HOW MUCH TO SELL YOUR HOME?

The commission that your real estate company is charging to sell your house is probably a hefty percentage of what your house is worth. At Help-U-Sell®, we have a different approach: a fee-for-services structure that allows you to choose the services you need - and pay for only the services you use. With the Help-U-Sell concept, you could save thousands of dollars when you buy or sell your next home.

LOCAL HOT POTATO WDWWS
THEM IN NEW YORK CITY

Peconika. Even the most discriminating New Yorkers are just amazed by this uniquely-blended vodka, made with Bridgehampton potatoes and select grains. Distilled four times, each time from the purest center cut and charcoal filtered, it's sublimely smooth, crystal clean, world-class vodka that makes all proud to pour it:

"Peconika is the best of the best. I never dreamt those wonderful potato fields in Bridgehampton would produce a vodka of such incredible character."

- Michael Aaron, Sherry-Lehmann

"High-end, super premium vodka, distilled four times and charcoal-filtered to ensure a silken texture."

- Marcelle Fischler, The New York Times

"Peconika has a uniqueness to it. It's a quality product that competes on an international level."

- Matthew McCartney, Gramercy Tavern

"We all agree that Peconika, New York's only premium vodka, is a natural for our perfect pour."

- Larry Forgione, An American Place

"We are extremely thrilled about Peconika. It's clean and crisp, and one of the smoothest, if not THE smoothest vodka, I have tasted."

- John Mautone, Dylan Prime

KIDS & TOBACCO

Kids should not smoke. Nor should they have access to tobacco products. We believe there is broad agreement on this important issue.

At Philip Morris USA, we are committed to dealing responsibly with the complex problem of underage smoking. There is no single, easy answer to this issue. Many experts suggest the best way to address underage smoking is through broad-based, integrated approaches that include communications, education, community involvement and access prevention.

As part of our commitment to play a role in reducing underage smoking, we have created a Youth Smoking Prevention Department whose sole purpose is to develop and support programs to help reduce the incidence of youth smoking. We've dedicated significant resources—over $100 million last year—toward initiatives based on the key components listed above. We are spending another $100 million against these initiatives in 2000.

Our effort includes support for school-based programs, one of which has been recognized for prevention excellence by the National Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other national organizations. We're also running national advertising campaigns: one that encourages kids not to smoke, and one that urges parents to talk to their kids about not smoking.

To help prevent minors' access to tobacco products, we support and help fund the Coalition for Responsible Tobacco Retailing's nationwide "We Card" retailer education and training program. This effort has helped train over 500,000 retail store employees to reject attempted purchases by minors.

Working to help prevent youth smoking is important and it's the right thing to do for our company and for our employees. It's also the right thing to do on behalf of our shareholders and our adult customers. Everyone has a stake in solving the problem of underage smoking. At Philip Morris USA, we are working to help find answers.

For more information about our youth smoking prevention efforts, visit our Web site at www.philipmorrisusa.com. If you don't have Internet access, please call 1-877-PMUSAWEB.
